Edison's Happy Day
Wrong Time to Strike
Psitachosis, Too Many Pets
Pity the Shorn Lambs

THE NATION READS with affectionate sympathy of Mr Edison's visit to Dearborn, where Henry Ford has rebuilt as it was in old days the simple Edison laboratory to which men owe so much.

Mr Edison was deeply moved when he saw his old tools, the chair in which he sat in his early youth, his primitive paraphernalia reassembled as used 50 years ago when he developed the idea that now lights the world.

Every old man can share Mr. Edison's emotions. The human heart is the same, with or without genius, to lend a real name.

A million among those that see this column today carry with them memories of youth—a shell bark hickory tree standing alone in the field, a grove of chestnut trees with yellowish green burrs open, showing the brown nuts within, a pond that held "shiners" and catfish, a swimming hole, happy memories of a free life and boundless hope.

The strike of drivers for big oil companies in New York collapses, all drivers returning to work. Some complain that they were led to strike by bad advice, against their will and judgment.

It must be clear to any wise leader of union labor that this is not a time when great corporations can be driven from their determinations to maintain the open shop.

No drivers' union can fight successfully against a thousand million dollars.

The charge of the light brigade was fine, it isn't a good idea to reproduce it in industry.

Men with families should not be forced into a hopeless fight. It makes them unhappy, and hurts union labor, when they are beaten.

Psitachosis, or "parrot's disease," alarms the Argentine and other parts of South America. Contracted from parrots, the disease is fubated, starting in the lungs and intestines, producing violent vomiting and death.

Nine actors and actresses playing with a sailor's pet parrot were taken ill, two died, and the parrot died also.

The human race will be healthier when all wild life shall have been eliminated, and all other life, perhaps, except that of human beings.

Horses carry typhoid, crocodiles carry sleeping sickness, the tse-tse fly implanting it in human beings, after biting the crocodile's gums. Mosquitoes transport malaria and yellow fever. Rats spread the dreadful bubonic and pneumonic plagues. Dogs have a monopoly of rabies. Children play with cats and get the germs of diphtheria from their fur.

Sad news from Wall Street. Many earnest little lambs, when the tickers stopped, might have been mistaken for hairless Mexican dogs, shaved off.

Some stocks, selling at twice their value, no need to name them, went part way toward the right price.

Good stocks, that in a few years will go 300 per cent above their present prices, dropped heavily. Foolish speculators usually sell good stocks to protect bad ones, partly because there's a market for good ones, none for bad.

The German flying boat DO X, heavier than air, with 12 powerful engines, flew yesterday carrying A HUNDRED AND SIX TY-NINE HUMAN BEINGS.

Of this living load 159 were passengers, 10 were crew: the greatest living load ever taken into the air. Germany has the honor of beginning what will be called real passenger fl .g.

Within a few years other improved airships will carry ten times 169 passengers. But this is a start.

You have watched a bird soaring, its wings not moving, wondering how the thing is done.

An East Prussian lieutenant, Dinort, in a German "glider," no engines, proves that men can do what birds can do and more.

Flying off Baltic sand dunes, he remained in the air fourteen consecutive hours, weathering a 50-mile gale. It is difficult even to imagine that.

MARKET STAGES COMEBACK

PRICES SOAR IN HUNT FOR BARGAINS

Scores of Issues Surge Ahead $3 to $30 a Share in Wall Street

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The stock market staged one of its characteristically violent comebacks today after more than a week of severe declines, which culminated in yesterday's avalanche of selling.

Scores of shares rallied about $3 to $30.

The pace of trading slackened up considerably, however, and the ticker, which ran about 100 minutes after the close yesterday, was able to keep fairly well abreast of the transactions on the floor of the exchange.

New York, Oct. 22 (INS)—Relieved of the crushing weight of an unprecedented bear clique, and with most of the "distress selling" of wobbly margin accounts completed in yesterday's heavy session, industrial stocks made brave effort today to win back some of their lost ground.

Bargain hunters were seen in Wall Street today for the first time since the break Oct. 4, and stock market experts recognized many of the familiar signs of better days for the unfortunate bulls who have been roughly handled in the last few weeks.

A bullish champion in the person of Charles E. Mitchell, head of the world's biggest banking institution, appeared on the scene. On his return from a European trip Mr. Mitchell shot a shaft at the bears, and in his usual optimistic style assured the country that fundamental business conditions were excellent. He did not hesitate to advocate a lower reserve bank rediscount rate as an aid to business.

In contrast to yesterday's hectic session, the tape was only three minutes behind the market at the end of the third hour and it was therefore possible to keep within hailing distance of what was going on on the floor of the big board.

Five Held in Bond Thefts

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Two thefts in which more than $700,000 in bonds were stolen were cleared up today, with the arrest of five men and the recovery of most of the securities.

Joseph Hirschman, 25, was taken into custody as the chief engineer of the theft of $512,000 worth of securities last September 29 from H. V. Hirst & Co., brokers. He was arrested after Carl Forman, now in the Tombs with Milton Alter, messenger boy, and David Schwartzberg, told police he had turned the bonds over to Hirschman after receiving them from Alter.

After the arrest of Alter and Schfartzberg, Forman said, Hirschman gave the bonds back to him and told him to leave town. Forman dropped a brief case containing all but $50,000 worth of the securities in a letter box in the East Side and then went to Boston, where he was arrested a few days later. He said he had believed all of the stolen bonds were in the case.

In the other theft, that of $200,000 worth of bonds stolen from A. E. Frank & Co., police had in custody Irwin Kott, bond and jewelry salesman, and were seeking indictments against Carl J. Lewis and Morris Liebtmann, attorneys, and Ferdinand S. Gillespie, an insurance adjuster. Part of the bonds have been recovered.

HUB CAPTAIN ON LOST BARGE

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP)—The freighter C. M. Schamb, 10 miles northeast of Chicago Light, reported to radio today it had picked up the two men aboard the oil barge City Service No. 2, as the barge sank in Lake Michigan today.

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 22 (AP)—Capt. Harry Lord of Boston and Frederick Harvey of New York were aboard the City Service No. 2 oil barge which was reported lost on Lake Michigan near Chicago last night.

The barge cleared the Muskegon harbor, towed by the tug Butterfield yesterday afternoon.

A radio report that the barge had foundered on the rocks near the North Chicago light was received here today.

LONE FLER ON HIS WAY TO ENGLAND

Hops Off From Harbor Grace in Daring Attempt to Emulate Lindy

St. John's, N. F., Oct. 22 (AP)—C. F. Ditman, Jr., flying from Harbor Grace to London, left the coast of Newfoundland at Cape St. Francis 16 minutes after his takeoff at 12:15 p. m. local time, or 12:45 Eastern standard time. Cape St. Francis is 17 miles north of St. John's.

St. John's, N. F., Oct. 22 (INS)—A daring attempt to emulate Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's solo flight across the Atlantic got under way today when W. F. Ditman of Billings, Mont., took off alone in a small monoplane for London.

The start was made from Harbor Grace, N. F.

The hop-off was made at 8 a. m. after absence of advance publicity, and almost nothing was known among the general public of Ditman's plans. He came here early this month ostensibly to look up some family records and nothing was known of his intention to make a flight.

The flight is being made in a Darling monoplane, having a special gasoline tank carrying 185 gallons of gasoline.

With only a few witnesses watching the plane's take-off, Ditman took off at 12:15 p. m. local time. The tiny plane was quickly lost to sight as it headed out over the sea in a due easterly direction.

From Harbor Grace, the distance to London is approximately 2100 miles. If he is favored by following winds Ditman should be able to cover the distance in about 21 hours, provided no mishaps occur to mar the journey.

Due to the comparatively small amount of gasoline carried, Ditman's plane is light, and it is hoped he will be able to make better time than the heavily loaded, giant planes in which similar flights have recently been made or attempted.

This is only the second time that

Mary Garden 'May' Sing for 'Talkies'

New York, Oct. 22 (INS)—Mary Garden returned today on the Majestic to announce that she may—just may—sing in the "talkies."

She is arranging a radio concert tonight, "never felt better in her life" owers eternal fealty to the short skirt.

"They can drag them in the gutter if they want to," she said, "but I'm going to wear them short."

U.S. to Lead All in Air Traffic, Says Fokker

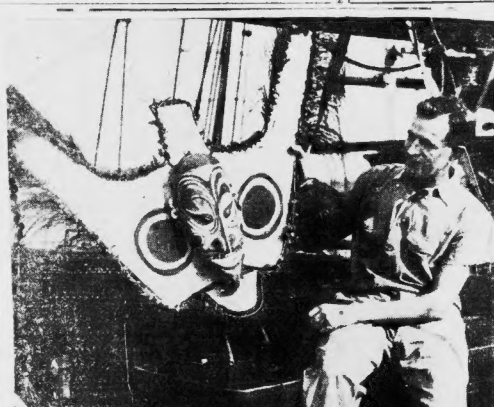
Plymouth, Eng., Oct. 22 (AP)—Prediction that the United States within a year will lead in air passenger transportation was made by Anthony Fokker, noted airplane designer, on his arrival today from New York. Fokker said his trip was to arrange a combination of European and American interests with a world-wide organization of factories.

Soviets Execute Five Imperial Generals

Moscow, Oct. 22 (AP)—A firing squad removed generals of the imperial army from the soviet panorama yesterday, after conviction on charg s of promoting a counter-revolutionary movement, the chief aim of which was to weaken the Red army and pave the way for foreign intervention.

Bond Money Movers in N. Y. for Billions

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The business of moving cash and securities through New York streets involves bonding of some 700 men for a total of $5,000,000,000 and insurance on more than 150 armored trucks for about as much more.



EDISON RESTING AT FORD HOME

Dearborn, Mich., Oct. 22—Tired fatigued by a day of ceremony in his honor that he had to have a banquet before President Hoover had spoken, Thomas A. Edison was described as in fair condition today.

Reports that Mr. Edison had collapsed and to the strain of his golden jubilee only were emphatically denied today. It was said the inventor had stood up well under the program and was resting today.

Mr. inventor left the hall immediately after he had delivered a brief speech. The President's physician, Lieut.-Commander Joel T. Boone, accompanied him from the hall and examined him in an anteroom.

Except for fatigue, Boone found no symptoms developing in the matter. Later Mr. Edison was taken to Henry Ford's home.

President Hoover visited Mr. at his bedside, as did Mr. Ford and John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Edison, prior to the banquet, had made a crude incandescent light in the same manner he did 50 years ago. It was in the same old laboratory and he used the same materials.

Boys Shot, One Dead, in Chase From Auto

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 22 (INS)—Ignoring a police command to halt, two youths were shot here today. Thomas Buckley, 16, was killed. Joseph Kuzek, 20, was seriously wounded in the back.

Police say the two, with four other boys, had been riding in an auto which they abandoned when a patrol car challenged them. The other four escaped.

$1,000,000 Da Vinci Pledged for $3470

Vienna, Oct. 22 (AP)—A painting which art experts believe may turn out to be a lost Leonardo da Vinci portrait of Ginevra, wife of Amerigo Benci, painted in 1503, is now among pledges in the government loan institute.

If authentic, experts say, it would be valued at more than a million dollars. It is pledged for $3470.

Judge Lindsey Makes His Will in Movietone

Detroit, Oct. 22—Judge Ben B. Lindsey will present to the next Colorado Legislature an addition to the statute of wills making it legal to use the movietone in making the last instrument.

Judge Lindsey already has made his last will and testament in movietone, he says, and he predicts the practice will become common.

ROCKET TESTS AT DEVENS

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Permission for Dr. R. H. Goddard of Worcester to make field tests of high flying rockets at Camp Devens, was granted today by the War Department.

The permission was granted with the understanding that the scientist, who is developing the rockets in the great heights for the collection of data about conditions in the upper atmosphere, would take precautions to prevent fires which might result from his experiments.

The request for permission was made through Secretary C. G. Abbott of the Smithsonian Institution, who is directly interested in studies of the effect of the sun's rays.

MORE POLICE TO STOP KILLINGS

Chiefs of police in every city and town in Massachusetts have been requested by Capt. George A. Parker, state registrar of motor vehicles, to assist in reducing the appalling death rate by appointing as many policemen as possible to temporary traffic duty.

The first to respond today was Chief Hugh Downey of the Lowell police department, who announced that he had appointed 50 motor officers to traffic duty at the request of Capt. Parker.

This augmented traffic squad will cover all sections of the city and Chief Downey has issued instructions to every man to be particularly on the alert for motorists who get out of line. Police officials in other cities and towns of the state are expected to follow Capt. Parker's suggestions.

Hoover, in Ohio, Lauds 'Engineering Mind'

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 22—"The towpath that led one Ohio boy to the White House has been modernized."

Thus President Hoover, in ending his speech today dedicating the Ohio River monument and marking the completion of the river's canalization system.

A pres ential salute of 21 guns greeted Mr. Hoover as his special train pulled into the Union Station at 9 a. m. from Dearborn, Mich., where he attended the Edison electric light jubilee celebration last night.

Governors of two states, William Conley, West Virginia, and Myers Y. Cooper, Ohio, welcomed the President at the depot. Oscar F. Barrett, president of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, in charge of the canalization program, also met the party.

The President received an ovation over the mile-long line from the station to the hotel, where he received the Cincinnati reception committees before proceeding to Eden Park, overlooking the Ohio, for the dedication ceremonies.

Crowds jammed all available space around the depot and were banked several deep along the sidewalks.

There was little improvement in the weather over that which greeted the Chief Executive yesterday at Dearborn. The skies were overcast and there was a slight drizzle.

Mr. Hoover wore formal morn-

BIG FISH MAN SAYS COOLEY TESTIMONY IS FALSE

Senate Committee Retains Counsel; Move on to Discredit Burgess

Washington, Oct. 22—Condemning testimony given before the law he was passed, testified today a group of the senate committee investigating the activities of lobbyists in the national Capitol.

John H. Bryce, president of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries Corporation charged Edmund M. Cooley, head of the Massachusetts Fisheries Association, with telling untruths when questioned in the committee room in Cooley lobby hearings yesterday. Cooley testified Bryce told him over the telephone:

"If you don't line up with us we'll go to bat and use our influence with senators and representatives to put flea on the free list."

The lobby committee today called in a special investigator and Attorney John Holland of the prohibition bureau to assist in its inquiry. Holland is from Butte, Mont., and assisted Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, during the senate investigation of the leasing of Teapot Dome naval oil reserves.

The lobby investigations also brought about a conflict in the testimony of William Burgess, former tariff commissioner, now representing the U. S. Potters' Association. He was the next witness.

TRAP FOR BURGESS

They revealed that Burgess, in testifying before the Senate Finance Committee, had deliberately concealed his connections with the Potters' association.

Senator Walsh (D.) of Montana, first read Burgess' testimony before the Finance Committee.

"Do you represent any particular interest at this time?" he was asked.

"No," replied Burgess.

Then Walsh read another question and reply.

"Q.—Or any group of interests?

"A.—I am representing the group of interests outside of the American manufacturers at large."

"How did you happen to give that testimony," Walsh demanded.

"It was the fact."

Burgess said he had not appeared on behalf of his association at that time.

"I was there as an individual on the question of valuation," he added.

SOUGHT TARIFF CUT

Bryce then was called. He denied the Atlantic Coast Fisheries Corporation is a Canadian concern, and said that five of its 17 trawlers operated in Canada waters and about 75 or 80 per cent of them landed at Groton, Conn.

Bryce said his attitude on the fish duty was that it should be lower.

A seasonal reduction in the fish tariff was approved by the Senate finance committee.

Bryce testified he had sent out telegrams to fish dealers urging them to wire members of the finance committee to reduce the fish tariff "in the interests of consumers and dealers." He said he called upon Senator Bingham once.

Cooley had testified he had been told he would have to "win over" Bingham and Eyanson to succeed in his efforts for retention of the fish tariff.

"That is an absolute falsehood," shouted Bryce, in reference to Cooley's testimony.

"Did you talk to him?" asked Chairman Caraway.

"Not since a fishers' convention in September a year ago."

Later, however, Bryce referred to a telephone conversation with Cooley, but he said Cooley then called him.

"That was when the bill was before the House, anyway," Bryce explained, "and this statement of Cooley's relates to when the bill was before the Senate."

IS CONNECTICUT CONCERN.

In denying the Atlantic Coast Fisheries Corporation was a Canadian concern, Bryce testified that five of its 17 trawlers operated in Canadian waters. About 75 or 80

Guest Takes Rum 'Rap' for Cong. Michaelson

Tampa, Oct. 22 (AP)—Walter Gramm, Chicago coal dealer, arrested on a liquor law violation charge in Key West last May after he had assumed the responsibility for liquor found in trunks brought into this country from Cuba by Congressman M. Alfred Michaelson of Illinois, pleaded guilty in federal court today and was fined $1000 and costs.

Gramm's appearance before Federal Judge A. Akerman today came as a surprise for no inkling was given prior to the opening of court.

PLEA FOR CLEMENCY

Gramm's attorney made a plea for clemency on ground that his client was a responsible business man, that the "error was purely a social one" and that the defendant was a "full guy." Gramm was a member of Congressman Michaelson's party, and there was "no commercial aspect to the liquor transaction," the attorney said.

Judge Akerman said he had no desire t. wreck a man's life with a prison term and would impose the fine. He added that the maximum penalty was two years' imprisonment.

JUDGE RAPS MICHAELSON

Commenting on his sentence, Judge Ackerman said:

"I have no desire to punish him for the faults of the escaped congressman—one of those who votes dry and drinks wet."

The indictment reviewed discovery at Jacksonville of liquor in one of six trunks brought into the country without customs inspection, when courtesy of the port of Key West was extended to the Illinois congressman. Twelve bottles of liquor were seized after a lock was broken and seeped out of one of the trunks.

Michaelson went on trial at Key West May 8. Gramm, his brother-in-law, testified the trunk containing liquor was his, and on this testimony Michaelson was acquitted and Gramm arrested.

BAY STATE COMPANY PLACED UNDER TEMPORARY NEW JERSEY BAN

VIOLATION OF FRAUD LAW CHARGED

Bankers' Securities Trust Is Restrained on Petition of State Official

[Newark, N. J., AP] Charged with violation of the New Jersey law which regulates the sale of investment securities, the Bankers' Securities Corporation of Delaware, domiciled in Wilmington, and the Bankers' Securities Trust of Maryland, their officers and two others, today were temporary restrained from such operations in this state.

The injunction was granted by Vice-Chancellor Buchanan on application of Edward J. Kennedy, New York, Myron Marx, Jersey City, Thomas J. O'Hara and Joseph Lang, all of Union City, New York. The Bankers' Securities Trust Company, a Jersey City corporation, is named as a party defendant in the petition for the injunction.

The bill of complaint charges defendants with violation of the New Jersey blue sky law, which requires that securities offered for sale in this state be registered with the Secretary of State. The Bankers' Securities Corporation is barred from selling securities in Massachusetts because officials there have failed to qualify under the state's blue sky law, it was learned in Boston today.

According to Massachusetts records, the Bankers' Securities Trust Company has an office in Boston, New York. The officers are listed as Nelson E. Morris, president, and John F. O'Hara, treasurer.

Flemish Artists' Gems on View at Benefit

New York, Oct. 22—In the New York art season just opened, the greatest event thus far announced is the exhibit of Flemish primitives organized by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst for the benefit of her free milk fund for babies. The show will open at the Knoedler Galleries with a private view on Saturday, the public view beginning Monday.

Secretary Mellon, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Jules S. Bache and other prominent collectors are sending gems from their private galleries. All the supreme early Flemish painters will be represented by one or more paintings, and the American public will be enabled for the first time to come [illegible] at a glance" the range and progress of one of the most magnificent schools of art ever produced in Europe.

Several Magnificent portraits will be shown and a number of beautiful devotional pictures. Among the latter are "Madonna and Child," by Dirk Bouts, lent by Jess Straus, "Virgin and Child," by Memling, lent by Col. Michael Friedsam; "Christ in Benediction," by Memling, lent by Dr. A. Hamilton Rice; and "Dream of Pope Sergius," by Rogier Van Der Weyden, lent by Mortimer L. Schiff.

STRIKE RIOT IN GLOUCESTER

Gloucester, Oct. 22—Trouble at the Ipswich Hosiery Mills, where a strike has been on since June, broke out again when 25 alleged strikers stormed the rear of the mills, hurled stones and bricks through the windows and then damaged two automobiles owned by Beckenbaker.

Scores of strike-breakers imported from out of the state went to work at the factory on the first night work since the strike started. Shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, while Patrolman Henry Bickford was doing duty in front of the factory, the attack came. It came onto the rear of the factory and started hurling stones through the windows. Several officers on duty were cut by broken glass and for several minutes the factory was in terror.

per cent of the trawlers land in Gloucester," he said.

"What was your attitude on the fish duty?" inquired Walsh.

"We did our duty should measure the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad," he replied.

Senator Walsh demanded to know if he wanted the tariff raised or lowered. He replied he wanted the fish duty lowered.

CALLED ON BINGHAM

Bryce said his corporation had hired Frederick Meisnest from the United States tariff commission last June. The Senate finance committee was then beginning consideration of the tariff bill.

"His employment had no relation to the tariff bill," inquired Walsh.

"Not at all," Bryce answered. "We did not present a brief or go before the Senate finance committee."

Under questioning by Chairman Caraway, Bryce said Meisnest prepared data for some of the briefs submitted on the fish tariff to the Senate committee.

Replying to Walsh, Bryce said he called upon Bingham about three or four weeks ago and told him of a desire for a reduction in the fish tariff. He said that meeting occurred in the public room off the Senate Chamber in the Capitol.

Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, asked if the fish company did not want a reduction in order to avoid importations from Canada. Bryce denied this.

He said he did send out a telegram framed by Cooley, calling upon fish dealers to wire requests to their senators and representatives in Congress for lower fish duties.

Yes, I am willing for the world to know that we wanted a lower fish tariff," Bryce asserted.

He admitted that he sent out more than five and less than 12 of the telegrams.

ON TRAIL OF LEAK

Bryce was the last witness today. The committee adjourned until tomorrow when it will hear from J. E. Wilcher of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association and Eyanson before returning to activities in connection with sugar rates. They will be questioned regarding the memorandum revealing a leak in the Senate tariff committee's secret sessions. This memorandum was to the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association.

In addition, Chairman Caraway was anxious for more light on the connection of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad with the Connecticut Manufacturers Association.

E. Kent Hubbard, president of the association, testified that the railroad contributed three or four thousand dollars annually to his organization and Caraway wanted to know the reason for these contributions.

LONE FLIER IS CATTLEMAN

Billings, Mont., Oct. 22 (AP)—W. F. Ditemar, who hopped off at Harbor Grace, N. F., today for London, is better known here as a cattleman than as an airplane pilot, although he is a licensed flier and has been flying for some time.

He is 40 years old. The machine Ditemar has been using was bought at Kansas City several months ago, when he took a shipment of cattle to market there.

Within the past month Ditemar flew to Winnipeg and Calgary and had not returned here. His wife and two children are believed to be in this city, but could not be located. Ditemar came here two years ago from Missoula and ranches in southeastern Montana and Wyoming.

TARIFF RATES ON CHEMICALS ATTACKED

La Follette Says Vote on This Schedule Will Be Acid Test of Revision

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—An attack on the tariff on chemical schedule would be an acid test of whether Congress wants a general downward tariff revision, Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, said in the Senate today that the increased duties proposed in this group were unjustified from every standpoint.

La Follette, leader of the Republican independent group opposing the measure in its present form along with a majority of Democrats, said the chemical schedule, as reported by the finance committee would increase the burdens already imposed on the farmers and general consumers and augment the huge profits of the "Big Three"—E. I. DuPont De Nemours & Co.; Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation, and the Union Carbide and Carbon corporation.

Net earnings of these corporations in 1928 were place dat $122,-000,000 with combined assets of more than a billion dollars.

ITALY IN SHARP NOTE TO SLAVS

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Italian minister has handed this government a sharp note from the Rome government relating to student demonstrations in Jugoslavia and the language of the Jugoslavian press.

Investigation is demanded into an affair at Ragusa Sunday, where citizens beat two Italian sailors; indemnities are demanded for the sailors.

Jugoslavian authorities today found upon some of the demands in the note as interference with Jugoslavian internal affairs.

Berlin, Oct. 22 (INS)—The Italian cabinet today confronted reports of a complete change in its personnel and the disappearance of the boy who proved embarrassing.

However, the embassy insisted there was no connection between the two happenings.

Meanwhile diplomatic circles here buzzed with comment on the sudden departure of the Italian ambassador, Count Aldrovani Marescotti, and his staff.

Pantages on Stand Cries Out "Frameup"

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 22—Alexander Pantages took the witness stand in his own defense today at his third trial for attempted rape of Eunice Pringle, his accuser. Framed him when he refused to make love to her, was the charge he swore his vaudeville circuit.

Pantages, on the stand, Rodney Pantages, 24, his son, testified to details of a conversation with Jay Sheridan, state's witness. The son was the first witness to take the stand today.

The demure, immaculately dressed Pantages took the stand, cool but determined looking.

The son testified Sheridan had attempted to extort money from his father. Rodney said Sheridan threatened to go to the district attorney if he was not paid $300. Sheridan is a San Diego hotel man and ex-convict.

The youth testified he told Sheridan "you can go to the district attorney or go to hell."

Edison Enjoying Rest at Home of Ford

lamp brightened the faces of three men, for the workroom is so small that no more could get in. They were President Hoover, Henry Ford and Francis Jehl, who as a boy of 20 assisted in the achievement.

Outside of the shop stood 500 visitors who represented the wealth, industry and scientific minds of the nation. The group included figures of international importance.

The village was darkened as it was before Edison gave the world the incandescent light. Oil lamps flickered at the street corners and in Independence Hall while the inventor worked over the model lamp for five minutes.

When the filament glowed a replica of the old Liberty Bell pealed out through the darkened streets. The oil lamps were extinguished and the quaint little village was turned into day by one of the most brilliant exhibitions of electric lighting in history.

The entire world paid Edison tribute and the ingenuity arranged here for the occasion proved too much for his waning strength.

When he arose at the banquet table his voice faltered. Tears dimmed his eyes as he spoke falteringly, saying:

"I am told my voice will reach to the four corners of the world. This gives me an unusual opportunity to express the appreciation I feel for the honor that has been paid me. I would be more embarrassed if I did not know that in honoring me you also are honoring that vast army of thinking men who have done much for the progress of the world in the past.

Einstein was trying to talk from Germany, the Prince of Wales from London and Byrd from the South Pole. Their voices were quite audible, but the aged inventor could not hear. He broke down in visible emotion and was led from the banquet table.

The inventor has just recently recovered from a siege of pneumonia which left him weak.

Trio Adrift 2 Days in U. S. Boat Saved

Miami, Oct. 22 (AP)—Adrift since Sunday, when their fuel supply became exhausted, three customs agents in the United States border patrol boat Ben Tee Too were rescued off Key West this morning by a coast guard patrol boat and the small craft towed into Key West.

The agents left Miami for Key West on the way to Tampa Friday and miscalculated their course in the darkness, passing their destination, after which their gasoline supply gave out.

Americans Decline to Head Great Bank

Baden-Baden, Germany, Oct. 22 (AP)—Jackson E. Reynolds and Melvin A. Traylor, American delegates to the conference on the bank for international settlements, have both been suggested as possible presidents for the new bank, but both are understood to have declined the honor.

The bank's statutes have been shaped with the idea that an American president not only will head the new institution, but will have vast powers, virtually enabling him to make or unmake it.

Container Manager Falls to His Death

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP)—Quincy V. Young, manager of the Container Corporation of America, either leaped or fell to his death today from the ninth floor of the Conway building, across from the City Hall. He fell in an alley and was killed instantly.

Young's offices were in the Conway building. He was married and the father of three children.

STRIKES BLOW AT "DOPE"

Washington, Oct. 22 (INS) — A smashing blow was aimed at international traffic in "dope" by Senator Blease today with introduction in the Senate of a bill making all narcotics denounced by the Harrison Act contrabrand when illegally possessed.

The measure would bring the banned drugs under the excise laws, throwing the entire revenue machinery of the government into the fight and prescribing heavy penalties for violation.

Plan Dornier Plane U.S. Flight in Spring

Altenrhein, Switzerland, Oct. 22 (AP)—No Atlantic flight is planned for the DO-X, giant Dornier airplane, before next spring, backers of the huge ship have made known. Distance trials, however, will be held for it in the near future.

Those connected with the Dornier organization and residents of the Lake Constance area alike were delighted today with the performance yesterday of the giant craft, which carried 169 passengers and crew aloft for an hour's flight.

Must Pay $140,000 or Give Up Jewels

New York, Oct. 22 (INS)—Mrs. Frank Vance Storrs of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel today was faced with the alternative of paying between $140,000 and $160,000 in fines or relinquishing all claim to jewelry and other merchandise which she is said to have brought with her when she returned from Europe.

Mrs. Storrs' purchases were seized when several thousand dollars' worth of undeclared merchandise was found in her baggage. She is scheduled to be given a final hearing tomorrow.

HOME CAN'T BE VIOLATED, SAYS DRY CHIEF

Doran Says Search Warrant Not Obtainable Without Sale Evidence

Washington, Oct. 22—The search of a private dwelling by government agents without warrants is prohibited by federal law and regulation, Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran declared today.

"A search warrant is not obtainable without evidence of sale," Doran added. "Prohibition administrators and agents have been so informed and are conversant with the regulations on this point. The law is being strictly observed."

These comments were made as a result of the denial yesterday of the Supreme Court to grant a writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of Iowa in the case of A. C. Ramsey of that state. The Iowa court sanctioned the search of Ramsey's apartment without a warrant connection with a liquor case.

Section 6 of the Willis-Campbell act provides that "it is unlawful for any officer or agent of the United States engaged in the enforcement of any law of the United States, to search without a warrant any private dwelling occupied as such." This section holds it a misdemeanor for a federal officer to enter a private dwelling without a warrant.

Private dwellings under the law include the room or rooms used and occupied not transiently, but solely as a residence, in any apartment house, hotel or boarding house.

Again referring to the "manual of instructions" for prohibition agents, Doran said that under federal, as well as state statutes, the officer, to render legal a search and seizure must have direct knowledge or belief, through his hearing, sight or other sense, that a crime is being committed.

No search warrant is necessary to justify an officer in entering a building where he has reasonable grounds to believe that a felony is being committed. In that case he may break doors and apprehend the felon.

The late Justice Harlon of the Supreme Court, once said:

"The principles that embody the essence of constitutional liberty and security forbid all invasion on the part of the government and its employes of the sanctity of a man's home and the privacies of his life."

ing clothes with a silk hat for the first time on the trip. Mrs. Hoover wore a modish black hat and a black cloth coat.

Mrs. Hoover received a gift from a number of Cincinnati girl scouts, who called on her at the hotel.

In the course of his speech at the monument in Eden park, in the presence of thousands, the President said:

"It is a great pleasure to me to share in the dedication of this monument glorifying for all time the completion of a nine-foot channel for the full length of the Ohio river.

"The engineering mind, about which I see so much in the newspapers here, does come to the surface and luxuriates in appreciation of a great engineering job well done.

"This new instrument of commerce, from which untold blessings will come year after year, is an enduring monument to those patient men of the civil profession whose lives are spent in devising means to increase the comfort and convenience of the world.

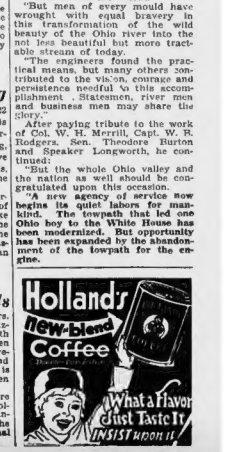
"But men of every mould have wrought with equal bravery in this transformation of the wild beauty of the Ohio river into the not less beautiful but more tractable stream of today.

"The engineers found the practical means, but many others contributed to the vision, courage and persistence needful to this accomplishment. Statesmen, river men and business men may share the glory."

After paying tribute to the work of Col. W. H. Merrill, Capt. W. F. Rodgers, Sen. Theodore Burton and Speaker Longworth, he continued:

"But the whole Ohio valley and the nation as well should be congratulated upon this occasion.

"A new agency of service now begins its quiet labors for mankind. The towpath that led one Ohio boy to the White House has been modernized. But opportunity has been expanded by the abandonment of the towpath for the engine.



MOVE TO CUT $200,000,000 OFF FEDERAL INCOME TAXES

BIG SURPLUS TO BENEFIT PUBLIC

Democrats Would Aid Salaried Folk; Corporation Levy to Be Slashed

Washington, Oct. 22 (INS)—Congressional action in the regular December session on a $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 tax reduction bill appeared probable today.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders on the House ways and means committee indicate their support of the movement.

Representative Hawley (R.), Oregon, chairman of the committee, declared "the presumption is that there will be tax reduction in the coming session."

Representative Garner (D.), Texas, ranking minority member, asserted the Treasury should stand a $200,000,000 slash.

Hawley planned an early conference with Secretary Mellon, who has already indicated the Treasury will recommend a tax cut.

"I favor first consideration of a reduction of the corporation income tax in any tax bill," said Hawley. "The millions of individuals who receive returns from corporations must pay a tax through the corporations much higher than the individual income tax rate. A reduction is necessary if tax burdens are to be equalized."

This program is also favored by Garner, who advocates a cut in the corporation rate from 12 to 10 per cent, amounting to $200,000,000 a year.

Hawley also announced that experts of the joint congressional committee on taxation are studying the estate tax, but declined to comment pending their report. He is not ready to announce a stand on earned income slashes.

Gardner's program includes raising the credit for earned income from 25 to 33⅓ per cent to aid the salaried man, as well as removing the present limit of $20,000 within which the benefit applies.

He would raise individual exemptions for single men from $1500 to $2000; married men from $3500 to $4000, and dependents from $400 to $600.

To Grant Hearing on Rally Permit

On petition of Joseph Bearak of Ward 14, a candidate for the city council, the board of street commissioners has set Thursday at 10:30 a. m. for a public hearing in City Hall relative to permits granted to City Councillor Israel Ruby, candidate for re-election in the same ward, for street corner rallies in Dorchester.

Bearak, in his complaint to the street commissioners, says the applications of Ruby were signed by persons other than the owners of the abutting property as required by law.

DREW TELLS OF EVICTING MRS. SANCTUARY

$200,000 Love Suit Defendant's Brother-in-Law Testifies in R. I. Trial

Providence Oct. 22—"I will cost you two birds some money before I'm through," Mrs. Grace L. Sanctuary is said to have told Arthur W. Drew when she was moving from the Bordeaux apartments owned by Edwin F. Cary, her former employer, who he is suing for $200,000 on breach of promise charges.

This was the testimony of Drew in Superior court today. He is a brother-in-law of Cary.

"When did Mrs. Sanctuary make that statement to you?" Drew was asked.

"In July, 1929 after we had served an ejectment notice on you two birds?" A.—Why, Mr. Cary and me.

TELLS OF EVICTION.

It was after her alleged threat that Mrs. Sanctuary brought the breach of promise suit, Drew testified.

He said that he called on Mrs. Sanctuary May 18, suggested that she move and said to her: "We have learned you inherited $1800 from your father's estate and that you have $1000 in the bank. You are in arrears in rent and we can't understand why you pretend to be poor."

Drew testified that because of Mrs. Sanctuary's refusal to pay her rent or move, ejectment proceedings were brought in July, 1925, and she moved two or three days before her furniture was scheduled to be taken out.

VISITED HER IN HOME.

He said that on April 11, 1926, after Cary had returned from his honeymoon, he and Cary went to Mrs. Sanctuary's apartment because of stories circulating and that Cary asked her, "Did I ever give you any cause to think I'd marry you?"

Mrs. Sanctuary replied "No," according to Drew's testimony.

Drew told the jury that while Cary was on his honeymoon he had heard Mrs. Sanctuary was saying she and Mr. Cary had planned to marry.

"I called on her, told her of the stories I had heard and she denied circulating them," Drew testified. "She denied telling any one she was going to marry Mr. Cary or that he had forsaken her for another woman. She told me the stories were circulated by persons who disliked her. I asked her 'Did Mr. Cary ever pay court to you or ask you to marry him?' and she replied 'No'."

TELLS OF 'TRICK' TO SAVE HEADS OF COMPANY

"Juggling" by Parker Smith Officials Now Facing Charges

New Haven, Oct. 22 (AP)—A story of how three officers of the Parker Smith Co., bankrupt investment concern, who are on trial on embezzlement charges, sought to save themselves when they took from their own books and their bank accounts that they faced ruin, was related before Judge Isaac Wolfe and jury today by Charles H. Coates of Hartford, an accountant.

The defendants are John E. Parker, president; Clarence W. Smith, secretary, and Paul M. Smith, treasurer.

Coates showed from his itemized audit how from day to day the company had large overdrafts in its banks, and it sought to make good by drawing checks on segregated mortgage trust accounts in one bank and deposited them to accounts in other banks.

On one day the company's books showed overdrafts of $16,000 in one bank, and $20,000 in another.

Although the state charges misuse of $166,000 Coates claimed the auditor showed that amounts due note holders was twice that figure. Coates also showed that on the day of the receivership, May 29, the company's liabilities were $1,044,328.

Actual debt to one bank was $23,324 and to another $114,500. The outstanding preferred stock was $400,200 and of common stock $39,800.

WANTS HONESTY IN CAMPAIGN

Declaring honesty is the best policy in a campaign, Miss Mildred Keane of the Democratic State Committee, speaking at the women's noon rally for James M. Curley, charged Frederick H. Mansfield was not honest in classing himself a Smith-Peters-Walsh Democrat.

She asserted Mansfield is endorsed by the Good Government Association and said the support could seriously consider any candidate of that organization.

Miss Mae Matthews, former president of the Telephone Operators' Union, urged the election of James M. Curley "for no other reason than what he did for Governor Alfred E. Smith last year."

Representative Lewis R. Sullivan of Ward 15 and Chairman Joseph H. O'Hearn of Ward 19, Democratic Committee, also spoke and urged the election of Curley. O'Hearn denied his committee had indorsed any other candidate.

Other speakers were Mrs. Eleanor Creed l'Ecuyer, secretary of the Women's Democratic Club; Mrs. Ada Alpert and Henry Lawler. More than 500 men and women were unable to gain admittance to headquarters, and speakers addressed them outside.

THIRD VICTIM OF RUM WAR IN HOSPITAL

Springfield Bootlegger Is Sought After Man Leaving His Garage Is Shot

Springfield, Oct. 22—A bootlegger was being sought by police today in connection with the third rum-war shooting in the last two months in which Pasquale Falcone of Kensington was the victim.

Falcone, who is in a critical condition in Mercy Hospital, was shot at 7:30 last night as he was leaving the garage across the street from his home.

The assailant fled and neighbors rushed Falcone to the hospital, where he told police that although he could not distinguish the man who assaulted he had an idea of his identity.

A 20-year-old bootlegger father of two children was caught, was taken into custody as a suspicious person but on being taken to the hospital was identified by Falcone as a friend.

Falcone himself has been arrested on seven different times for liquor offenses and once the man sought was knocked down a flight of stairs in the police station while on his way to Springfield with a load of booze.

In September Falcone received a threatening letter, written in an Italian dialect, which demanded the payment of $5000 on pain of death. This letter was signed "P. Malone" and "Gang."

Two other men, Trimboli and Pelotere, were fatally shot in connection with the rum war, according to police, and their slayers have never been brought to justice.

JAIL RICH WIFE IN DEBT PLOT

Chicago Oct. 22 (AP)—The trap that February in which Mrs. Edith C. Price reported the loss of $18,000 in furs and jewels had been set all the way in Paris, was revealed today.

Four men she named as having conspired with her to defraud an insurance company also were seized.

Mrs. Price, 58-year-old wife of an elderly millionaire manufacturer, confessed after she had admitted that the holdup was a sham, they said. She reported to it, she said, to conceal her gambling debt from her husband.

The plot was conceived, she stated, Mrs. Morris Barnett, to whom she confided her gambling difficulties, and her lover, Alexander Rose, real estate operator, who said he was sold by Max Krakow, a manufacturer of furs, to steal the jewels, Mrs. Price said, were Jack Baum and Ben Levin.

Mrs. Price said that Barnett suggested that she insure her jewels and that the sum required to cover her debts and that he would arrange to have her "robbed" and also would arrange disposal of the loot.

Navy Parleys No Good, Says Lewis

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 22 (AP)—The promise of Secretary Wilbur to reduce their navies is but a "brandish of international courtesy," John L. Lewis, Sen. James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, told the United Rotary open meeting today in conjunction with the American Bar Association.

"Naval limitations conferences mean little, he said, because "the next war will be by air and chemicals," and navies will not be important. First let the people of the nations disarm of hatred, then armies of war will disarm themselves."

FIND REINSTEIN 'THREAT' GIRL

Kay Cunningham, Chelsea girl and New York night club habitue believed by police to hold the key to the murder of Samuel Reinstein, probably will be under questioning by Boston police tonight.

This information was sent to Boston today from New York by Police Inspector Timothy Donovan who has been searching for her a month.

She is the dancer who, in a Back Bay club, is declared to have shouted to a male partner that she would tell everything about the Reinstein case if he didn't return her watch and ring.

In addition to Donovan, two other Boston officers and Asst. U. S. Atty. Hubert Thompson were in New York today in connection with the murder and the resultant white slave disclosures.

Sergt. Robert C. Mooney and Special Officer Mark Madden of Hanover st. station were then checking up the story told by 17-year-old Helen Bryer, daughter of a New York patrolman, who found a home in the Sheafe st. North End, she said she had been induced to come to Boston and made charges against a Boston police officer.

EX-GOV. CATTS ACCUSED

Tampa, Oct. 22 (AP)—Testimony that Sidney J. Catts, former Governor of Florida, had offered to give Julian Diaz, convicted counterfeiter, $2000 in connection with the release from jail of Mateo Mir for operation of a counterfeit scheme, was given in federal court here today by Leah Burwell.

He is co-defendant and Government witness in the trial of Catts for alleged implication in a counterfeiting ring.

Send Woman $4 to Help Pay Back Rent

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Mrs. Tillie Hart, who has been directed by a court order to pay up three months' back rent by tomorrow or abandon her campaign to keep the home fires burning in an apartment building the wreckers want to tear down, had $4 toward the necessary $600 today.

It came in the form of four $1 bills in four letters from well-wishers who had read about her in the newspapers.

"And besides," she said, "there's been some talk of giving a benefit for me tonight. So I might not have to move out tomorrow after all."

W. C. T. U. HEAD WARNS G. O. P.

Springfield, Oct. 22 (AP)—Miss Alice P. Reed, state president addressing the Massachusetts Women's Christian Temperance Union convention today urged an increase in the educational efforts of the W. C. T. U.

She said Hoover's failure to carry Massachusetts was largely due to failure of the Republican party to stand firmly on his platform of support for vigorous enforcement of the 18th Amendment. She declared that ignoring prohibition as an issue will mean another fall for the Republican party in this state.

"It is true the south of our land, the vast majority of whom are lawabiding citizens, have been misrepresented by the murder and the resultant white slave disclosures.

"We, the W. C. T. U. stands firmly by President Hoover. His pledges of confidence in his sincerity and will uphold him in his efforts to bring better enforcement. We believe the states should bear their part. Massachusetts has competent legislation and the W. C. T. U. protests attempts of the Constitutional Liberty League to have it repealed."

Rum Chasers Test 'Listening' Device

Buffalo, N. Y. Oct. 22 (AP)—The coast guard is trying out listening devices for detecting rum runners on the Great Lakes. A seven foot tube placed over the side of a rum chaser, it is hoped, will enable the compass bearing and approximate speed of another craft within a nine miles radius to be determined.

Churchmen Oppose Repeal of Blue Laws

Atlantic City, N. J. Oct. 22 (INS)—The Presbyterian Church as a unit will vigorously oppose any move to repeal the existing Sunday "blue laws" in New Jersey, Rev. James A. Donahue of New Brunswick, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, declared in an address delivered today to the 167th annual meeting of the Synod of New Jersey.

Rev. Donahue said that no sane Christian would deliberately destroy the sacred significance of the Lord's Day" and that as long as "blue laws" expressed the will of the people they must be enforced.

Three Runaway Boys Arrested

Springfield, Oct. 22—Three boys who admitted they escaped from the Berkshire Industrial School at Canaan, N. Y., Sunday night, were arrested by P. J. Hewey in Agawam today.

The boys, who had a roll of cloth they confessed having stolen from an automobile, gave their names as George Piper, 15, Rochester, N. Y.; Merrell Graham, 14, Watertown, N. Y., and Joseph Weeks, 14, Wayne, Pa. They will be turned over to the school authorities.

French Pay to Hear American Records

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—American phonograph records are so popular in France that, in the outlying cities and towns, shops which dispense them are regularly able to give concerts and charge admission to the performance.

An American trade agent, reporting to the Commerce Department on this phenomenon, says the thrifty French are willing to pay two or three francs for the privilege of hearing the new stuff run through the machine, buying afterward.

Didn't Know Name of Girl He'd Marry

London, Oct. 22 (INS)—The number of bridegrooms who have arrived for their marriage minus wedding ring or license is legion. But George White, a prospective London bridegroom, is probably the first man who was unable to supply the registrar with his wife's surname and address.

When the registrar asked White for the bride's full name and address he said:

"I'm sorry I don't know her last name." White said. "I've always called her Peggy. I know the street and house where she lives, but I do not know the name of the road." His application was postponed until he found out.

MacDonald Wearied by Long Conferences

Montreal, Oct. 22 (AP)—Wearied by 18 days of conferences and social functions, Ramsay MacDonald today looked forward to several days of rest in the Lake St. John District of Quebec before sailing for home on Friday.

With his daughter, Ishbel, and members of his party, the British prime minister left last night by special train for Chicoutimi, where he will be the guest of Lieut. Col. John P. Price. He will return to Quebec Friday to embark on the steamship Duchess of York.

German Conscription Ban an Aid to Cupid

Berlin, Oct. 22 (AP)—Abolition of military conscription has caused a steadily rising marriage rate in Germany, Dr. Otto Wagner of the Federal Statistical Bureau explains it.

"Man is born to serve and obey. If he does not serve the state he has to serve women, and there are 2,000,000 more women than men in Germany today."

$300,000 YACHT MAY BE SEIZED

The possibility that the 200-ton barkentine, Illyria, just back from a 30,000-mile cruise through the Pacific, might be seized for violation of the federal prohibition laws, loomed today.

The ship, valued at more than $300,000, is lying in Gloucester Harbor under guard of United States custom officials who boarded her after Capt. S. D. Boutillier declared in his usual manifest there were 250 bottles of liquors stored on her.

Preparations have already been made to seize the valuable liquor today. It will be taken under guard from Gloucester and placed in a vault at the appraisers stores in Boston.

Thomas Finnegan, deputy collector of customs, was in conference with representatives of the United States district attorney's office concerning the Illyria.

Members of the crew said the liquor is the personal property of Cornelius Crane of Ipswich, owner of the craft, and it had been stored away to be used only in case of illness among members of the crew.

Capt. Boutillier, an ardent prohibitionist, declared he did not know the carrying of the liquor was a violation of the law. He stated that he believed he had covered the law when he declared it in his manifest.

HOOVER, ALLEN BACK SALLIES'

Leaders of the state and nation signed generous support of the annual appeal of the Salvation Army, which opened officially at a luncheon at the Hotel Statler today.

Governor Allen, who attended the luncheon with Mrs. Allen, paid tribute to the work of the organization in Boston and said: "I cannot speak too highly of the splendid work the Salvation Army is rendering in our Commonwealth and nation."

Philip R. Allen, chairman of the Greater Boston advisory board of the army, presided and read the following message from President Hoover:

"The work of the Salvation Army is of the highest social humanitarian value, and deserves generous support."

Mrs. Frank G. Allen, chairman of the women's division of the appeal organization, spoke of the work her committee hopes to accomplish.

The gratification with which the appeal was received by the "splendid advisory board and campaign organization prepared to conduct this appeal," was expressed by Col. Edward Underwood of New York. He said the great need in the campaign for $250,000 is substantial increases in subscriptions.

"We must not depend upon a few large donations," he said. "Every-one of the 100,000 subscribers of last year must be requested to increase their gifts materially so the $250,000 goal can be achieved."

Other speakers included James M. Curley, Mrs. Lothrop Ames, Sidney S. Conrad, Edward P. Barry, Read Admiral Philip Andrews, Howard Coonley and George Hannauer.

FEAR LURKING GANG AT TRIAL OF BANDIT

Lamar, Col., Oct. 22 (AP)—Ralph Fleagle, gray-haired leader of the Lamar bandit gang, today faced trial for a slaying for which two of his companions in the Lamar Bank robbery of May 23, 1928, were condemned to death yesterday.

As the time for the trial approached, Lamar became increasingly agitated over possibilities of a jail break or a lynching. Another report that three automobile loads of armed men were lurking about the town was received by a truck driver who reported seeing the cars and men.

The same band stopped a farmer Sunday night and queried him regarding the strength of the Lamar jail, where Fleagle and his companions are held.

Fleagle, 50 years old, has been branded the "brains" of the gang which was responsible for four deaths during and after the holdup. That accusation was made by one of his companions, Howard L. Royston, whom he implicated in the crime and who has been sentenced to death. Both Royston and George J. Abshier, the other outlaw sentenced to the gallows, are expected to testify against Fleagle.

Specifically charged with the first degree murder of A. N. Parrish, president of the robbed First National Bank, Fleagle's case is complicated by a "bargain" made between authorities and the prisoner that he would be spared the death penalty in return for his confession. The confession implicated Royston and Abshier, and Jake Fleagle, brother of Ralph, still being sought.

Fleagle's confession sent his two companions into the shadow of the noose.

Man Held in Theft of $200,000 Bonds

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—One man was held and indictments were sought against three others today accused by police of being members of a ring responsible for the theft of $200,000 worth of bonds belonging to Arthur E. Frank & Co., brokers.

The man arrested on a charge of grand larceny is Irwin Kott, bond and jewelry salesman. The theft of the bonds from a bench in the broker's office occurred August 3, when a messenger employed by the company laid the package down while he went for a drink of water.

Reds Riot on Greek Isle

Athens, Oct. 22 (AP)—Rioting of alleged Communistic origin on the Island of Thasos Monday necessitated sending a strong police force from Kavala to restore order. There were several arrests.

Hurt Saving Her Boy

Mrs. Annie Arsnow of Peterboro st., Back Bay, and her son, James, 2½ years old, whom she saved from the path of an auto, but was herself struck. She is recovering at Beth Israel Hospital. The boy suffered slight bruises. (Staff photo.)

Happy because the life of her 2½-year-old son, James, had been saved, Mrs. Annie Arsnow, 32, of 105 Peterboro st., Back Bay, began a fight back to health today at the Beth Israel Hospital.

In her brave and successful attempt to prevent her boy being struck by an automobile in Peterboro st., near their home, the mother herself nearly lost her life.

The boy escaped with bruises on the head, while Mrs. Arsnow suffered internal injuries and many cuts.

Miss Margaret Hicks of River st., Hyde Park, was the operator of the car from whose path Mrs. Arsnow pushed her son, only to be struck herself.

FLORENCE AND JOHN GETTING ALONG 'FINE'

New Haven, Oct. 22—John and Florence Coolidge are getting "settled down."

The former President's daughter-in-law tonight told something of the simple routine of their newly-wedded life. She said:

"Every morning I get up and prepare a light breakfast and John joins me at the table. Then I drive him to work at the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, where he arrives at 8:30 o'clock. Upon my return I do my marketing and it's time to be preparing lunch when I get home and do the morning housework.

"We do not keep a maid and we do not intend to. It is not a severe task for me to do the housekeeping in such a cozy flat, equipped with every convenience.

"Of course, John takes a real interest in the household affairs and we are getting along beautifully. We enjoy our cars these wonderful Fall afternoons and evenings and we are receiving a few calls and making a few.

"It is delightful being in New Haven for the Yale athletic events, but John and I have enjoyed many of them during the last two years. No perplexing problem has arisen in connection with housekeeping and none is in sight. We think that our apartment is cozy and homelike and we are enjoying it to the extreme."

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge plan to spend Sunday usually at the residence of her father, Governor Trumbull, in Plainville. They will be the guests this week at a dinner given by Ernie Wiltstein, the orchestra leader, who furnished music for the wedding, and who has played at Amherst College and Yale University dances and promenades for years.

50-Cent Fine First in Vatican City

Vatican City, Oct. 22 (AP)—The first fine imposed in the new state is about 50 cents. A bicycle messenger drew it for riding without a bell.

U. S. NAVY BAND TO PLAY FOR CRIPPLES

An added treat will be given to the old soldiers and deformed children at Massachusetts Hospital School, Canton, when the children hear the crack United States Navy Band of Washington tomorrow afternoon at the institution, through courtesy of Revere post, No. 949, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Candy, fruit, dolls and other toys will be presented to the children by members of Ladies' Auxiliary of Revere Post. These goodies will be purchased from proceeds of a dancing party to be held tonight in Grand Army Hall, Revere, by the women.

If weather permits, the concert, which will begin at 2 o'clock, will be held out of doors, according to Dr. John Fish, superintendent.

The women in charge of tonight's benefit dancing party include Mrs. Celia Brown, chairman; Mrs. Rose Jacobs, Mrs. Mary Kaufman and Mrs. Bessie Hanken, national president.

Plans have been completed for the public concert by the band from the national capital in Symphony Hall, Boston, tomorrow night, under auspices of Revere Post. Proceeds are to be devoted to the assistance of needy veterans and dependents. A real peppy program of favorite music of men in the United States Navy has been arranged.

Several prominent Army and Navy officials will attend, including Rear-Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of First Naval District, and Maj.-Gen. Preston Brown, commandant of First Corps Area, U. S. A.

The committee in charge of the concert consists of National Chairman, Joseph H. Hanken; chairman; Raymond L. Parkhurst, Daniel Grant, Henry Trundle, Harry Waxer, Henry Morse, Jr., George Keating, Richard Armstrong and Charles Voss.

Once Poor Alien Lends Europe 300 Million

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—A man who 29 years ago became elated over a $50 commission for sale of a Chicago lot, today as a leading creditor of a dozen nations is one of the world's most powerful financial figures.

Ivar Kreuger, 49, Swedish bachelor, who in 10 years has lent $200,000,000 to various nations in return for match monopolies, again has become the center of attention in the financial world by the loan of $125,000,000 to the German government.

Although born in a family that had been engaged for several generations in the manufacture of matches, Kreuger early in life turned to engineering as a career. Graduating from the Stockholm Technical College, he made a tour of the world to gain practical knowledge in his chosen field.

He landed in New York in 1900 with $100 in his pockets and the gaining of a job as his immediate concern. The world's fair attracted him to Chicago, where by answering a newspaper advertisement he obtained a job as a real estate salesman. After three weeks' of visiting prospects he sold a lot and made $50.

He returned to New York in time to take a small part in the erecting of its skyline, working as an engineer on such buildings as the Flatiron and the Metropolitan.

In 1913 he entered the family match manufacturing business and in 1919 started it on its world expansion program, his first step being the consolidation of all Swedish match manufacturers.

Bingham Criticized by Press For 'Borrowing' Tariff Lobbyist

Editorial comment on the charges of Senator Bingham's connection with the tariff lobbyist in Washington.

Chicago Tribune

Senator Bingham of Connecticut has appeared as witness before the Senate committee investigating the activities of lobbyists in Washington.

When the tariff bill was in committee Mr. Bingham visited Charles L. Eyanson, attorney for the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, to advise him on the tariff requirements of that state. Mr. Eyanson, a member of the committee, possessed information which Mr. Bingham is charged with having used to secure the defeat of a senator he succeeded in the senate. Mr. Eyanson was subsequently defeated for renomination and personally replaced.

When Eyanson had returned to Connecticut Mr. Bingham sent him a check for $1000 for services rendered, which Mr. Eyanson did not cash.

The investigation seems to have ample power to get the bottom of the business. Mr. Bingham's explanation should plainly expose Mr. Bingham's motives and methods.

The effort to put the blame upon those who employed Mr. Bingham seems to us to obscure the issue rather than help it. Mr. Bingham's services as an expert witness before the committee on finance of Yale and Princeton, who has a world-wide reputation as an expert on the tariff relations of Latin American countries, was entirely legitimate.

It would take a very long time to get a tariff bill through congress if it were not possible to secure the best information obtainable from those who are to be affected by it.

The charges fall naturally into two divisions. Mr. Bingham sought the advice of the Manufacturers' Association regarding tariffs desired by the industries of his state, and that the committee should, was superfluous for him in itself.

If the committee, every member of the committee of the whole house, had been given the same opportunity to secure special pleading from the interests of their constituencies, the presumption of agencies states has presented itself as the end of manufacturing duties for them.

Ideally, that may not be the best way to enact a national tariff wall, but it is the only way which has ever been tried and no substitute is yet available.

In so far as any member of Congress speaks only for his district he must seek knowledge of information regarding protection passed on to him from his constituents.

It was impossible that Mr. Bingham's visit to Mr. Eyanson should have given him any information regarding the requirements of any state he represented. He could not have gained it by any other means with which the Manufacturers' Association was not familiar.

The charges against Mr. Bingham as they stand do not seem to us to be serious. We do not see that any purpose was served by the investigation.

If Bingham did not know more than to make such a visit he does not know enough to be a Senator, and if he did know better, but dragged his name in any way, he is not ethically competent to be a Senator.

And no amount of explaining or admitting mistakes will affect those facts.

San Diego (Cal.) Union

Senator Bingham's frankness in telling the committee investigation to aid him in a supposedly impartial consideration of the tariff situation is to be commended, and commends in general, and

Portland (Ore.) Journal

The Senate committee investigating lobbying activities in Washington has not gone far enough to suit it has developed startling facts.

It has disclosed that Senator Bingham, Republican, of Connecticut, a member of the Finance Committee, borrowed the services of the president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association during the time the Republican members of the committee were writing the tariff schedules. It has disclosed that Bingham, the supposed purpose of the association, acted as Senator Bingham's secretary for a period of three months during the tariff hearings, that the senator were not divulged from his office during that period, that Eyanson was taken into the senate tariff sessions with the Democratic Senator that there were leaks in the committee's proceedings, during that period, and that the chairman of the committee eventually removed that Bingham no longer being Eyanson, the manufacturers' employee, and his temporary secretary, with the committee meetings.

N.Y. Journal of Commerce

Senator Bingham did more than make a mistake and his explanation of the situation added him to Senator Walsh proves that he knows it did.

Subsidizing Senator Eyanson received, Mr. Bingham, the United States senate, would have brought a charge of bribery into the committee's session. Mr. Bingham's explanation does not put a technical answer.

That can be all right, if Bingham did nothing more than to make such a visit. He does not know enough to be Senator, and if he did not better, but dragged his name in any way, he is not ethically competent to be a Senator.

And no amount of explaining or admitting mistakes will affect those facts.

"AD" MEN HOLD "AIR-MIND" SESSION

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 22 (AP).—Airmen were prominent at the 10th annual meeting of the Advertising Clubs of New England, in session at the Hotel Stratfield, this city.

A. D. Gibbs, vice president of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company and president of the Advertising Club of Boston, spoke on "Research in Public Utility Advertising."

At the luncheon today Maj. P. F. O'Keefe, president of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency of Boston and vice president of the Advertising Federation of America, presided.

The meeting took the form of the first "air-minded" convention ever held by the New England advertising men.

Many of the delegates, including Miss Amelia Earhart, arrived by airplane. Connecticut's "flying governor," John H. Trumbull, greeted the delegates.

$57,000 GEM ROBBERY IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP).—The disappearance of jewels valued at $57,000 was under investigation today.

A $17,500 pearl necklace belonging to Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson of Lake Forest disappeared from a delivery truck in which it was being taken to Mrs. Ryerson from a loop jewelry store where it had been restring. The necklace consisted of 300 pearls with a diamond clasp and a platinum setting.

Louis S. Rose, a jewelry salesman, reported the loss of jewels valued at $40,000. They were taken from him, he said, by two men as he was riding in a street car yesterday. The robbers pressed guns against him and compelled him to hand over the sample cases in which the jewels were kept, he said.

Clemenceau Merry After Heart Attack

Paris, Oct. 22—Georges Clemenceau, "the Tiger," has weathered a storm that threatened him. Today apparently he had regained the former surprising vigor of his 88 years after a serious heart attack. Dr. Laubry, completing his examination of the former premier, said he found him in "excellent condition," and in "his usual joking mood" after a fine night's rest.

Noted Tenor to Sing at Dance to Be Given for Miss Barbara Wendell

Edward Johnson On Program for Big Social Event On Nov. 15

IN LOOKING BACK OVER A year of debutante festivities there are always one or two that stand out. For example, last year there was Miss Sally Sprague's ball given in her honor by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phineas W. Sprague of Commonwealth ave. It took place at the Somerset and was exceedingly well attended by Boston's best. ...ring the supper-dance in the main dining room a couple of amusing entertainers played and sang some light and amusing songs. The year before the most talked of dance of the season was that given by Mr. and Mrs. Augustus P. Goodwin of Hamilton for Mrs. Goodwin's daughter, Miss Betty Barrell, at the Copley-Plaza. Two stirring orchestras, magnificent clothes, including the bright coat of a huntsman here and there all lent charm and success to this affair. Three winters ago it was the S. Huntington Wolcotts' presentation ball for their charming daughter, Miss Edith Wolcott, at the Copley which will not be quickly forgotten.

I VENTURE TO SAY THAT the outstanding dance of this season will be either the one given by Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKay Frost and Mrs. Mary Ryerson Frost of Exeter st., or the ball of Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Jr. honoring Miss Barbara Wendell. The hearts of those reading the Frosts' invitation in their morning mail must indeed have thrilled, when they saw that at the concert previous to the dance Edward Johnson is to sing. Mr. Johnson is a Metropolitan Opera star. John McCormick has said of Mr. Johnson that he is the greatest tenor in America. This concert and dance is to take place at the Hotel Somerset on November 15. Mr. and Mrs. Frost and their family are at present staying at Frostfield, their Dover estate.

THE POURERS AT MISS ELIZABETH HOLMES' presentation tea tomorrow are not all debutantes of this season. Miss Victoria Potter, who made her debut several winters ago, is to be in charge of the dining room. Among those assisting at the tables will be Miss Potter's sister, Miss Isabel Potter; Miss Mary Lovering of Manchester, Miss Frances Burnett of Southborough, Miss Katherine Robinson of the Riverway, Boston; Miss Elizabeth Sanders of Sumner st., Salem; Miss Mary Ives of Essex st., Salem; Miss Elizabeth Saltonstall of Readville and Miss Elizabeth Morison of Brimmer st., all members of this year's coterie of buds. Others having the honor of pouring are Miss Helen Streeter of Beacon st., Miss Margaret Farnsworth of Middlesex rd., Chestnut Hill; Miss Nancy Adams of Cottage Farm rd., Brookline; Miss Rosamond Sears of Weston, and Miss Margaret Tew. Most of these ushers are girls of several seasons ago.

Miss Joan Waldo Miss Leila M. Stevens

Miss Joan Waldo is one of the provisional Junior League members who will usher at the Koussevitzky recital tonight. With her is Miss Leila M. Stevens, another of this season's debutantes.

Miss Helen Marie Bridges will become the bride of John Austin Sears Mc-Gleenon, Jr. on Saturday. Miss Bridges is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Willard Bridges of the Stoneleigh Apartments, Beacon st., Brookline, where both the ceremony and reception are to take place. It is to be a small wedding and only members of the family are to be present during the plighting of marriage vows. The bride is to have but two attendants, Miss Dorothy Bridges is to be her sister's maid of honor, and Mrs. Samuel Willard Bridges, Jr., the former Miss Dorothy McGlennon, DeNike, cousin of the bridegroom, is to be her sister-in-law's matron of honor. Mr. Bridges will give his daughter in marriage, and at the appointed moment Orin L. Newton, of Chicago will tender the ring. Mr. McGlennon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. S. McGlennon of Chicago Heights, Ill. Miss Bridges attended Miss Lee's School, Katharine Gibbs School and Barrington School. She is a member of the Junior League.

Velvet, in Every Variety of Weight and Weave, Continues to Lead Paris Fashion Promenade

(SKETCHED IN PARIS)

Waistline Is Not Only Being Belted, but Cuffed as Well

Paris Bureau of the Boston Evening American

PARIS, Oct. 22.—The waistline, the grey hem, mentioned in the larger fur coats edition of various treatments, for not only is it being belted, but cuffed. Most of the new models displayed during the past week pay some attention to the waistline. Last year it was almost nonexistent, particularly appearing, of course, but this year it is the center of attention.

Velvet continues its march triumphant here. In every variety of weight and weave, it is used for every variety of costume. Foremost in fashion, it is more expressive of the luxury and spending of the mode than any other fabric.

Very wisely, it is left severely alone as far as trimming and embellishment are concerned, and allowed to speak for itself. An overtrimmed velvet gown is like beautiful women disfigured by too much make-up and a strident voice. Perfect lines and exquisite materials are all that are required to make a gown a thing of beauty.

From the collection of Lanvin, we have chosen a model that is expressive of velvet at its best. It is an afternoon ensemble of chiffon velvet in a soft castor shade, with the bodice of matching satin.

THE narrow raglan sleeves are closely shirred, likewise the entire jacket to a point just above the knee. The softly hanging skirt is slightly longer at the back, and has the cuff above the belt and extending all around. The tailored belt is enhanced by a small jewelled buckle.

PATOU uses silver lame with a small flower design in pink and green for the blouse illustrated. It fits snugly to the figure, blousing somewhat, however, just above the natural waistline. The skirt is of black chiffon velvet, moderately long and even all around with some circular fullness in front.

NEWBURYPORT PLANS REAL AIR MEET

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

Newburyport, the town made famous by "Mossy" Gillis, will shortly take its place on the air maps of the nation, if the present aviation enthusiasm is any criterion.

The statement is made as an aftermath of our presence at the miniature air meet held at the new airport established northwest of the town over the past week-end. Jimmie Dickens and Earl Crabb, — of the Distinguished Flying Cross awarded during the late war when he was flying with the Royal Flying Corps, along with Lt. Skipper Tibett, of Hartford, put on a bit of a show that brought 3000 residents of Newburyport and surrounding towns out to the airport Sunday afternoon.

The idea was more to arouse enthusiasm for flying in the countryside, and the spectators were given enough thrills to make it worth their while to stay around and watch.

Next week-end the boys are planning a real air meet, with a dozen ships attending, and with a complete program of events. Dickens declared that the field they are using had possibilities of being one of the largest on the Eastern seaboard, and that he and his associate, Earl Crabb, were going to go to work on the development of the field. As it is situated about half way between Portland and Boston, the field will take its place as an intermediate stop between the two cities when the proposed Boston-Portland air line is established.

When the Colonial extends their air mail service to Portland, the Newburyport location will undoubtedly be a stop on the run, offering fast air mail service to the entire Merrimac Valley.

While an accurate count of the passengers carried Sunday afternoon is not at hand it is safe to say that more than 300 people experienced their first taste of airplane riding.

Dickens assured us that he would send a complete program of events for the coming week-end, and when it arrives, we will be able to tell you more about the latest aerial whoopee party.

In a dispatch from Universal Airlines, we are told that the coast-to-coast air mail service offered by that company carried 1,904 passengers on the air legs during July, August and September, and established a record of 98 per cent in operations efficiency.

The aircraft line bring the two coasts within two business days of each other. Four hundred and ninety-five trips on the air legs of the route were started during the three months above, and 486 of these were completed, making connections with the trains.

George MacDonald, Wes Temple and Pilot Al Tower returned from their series of three air meets up in northern Vermont, run by the Cleveland "Mac" stated that the three affairs in Newport, Barre and White River Junction, were highly successful, and that the whole gang of boys had a whale of a time. Now we expect George Watkins, chief pilot for Massachusetts Airways of Springfield, will return to Boston for a short visit. George had a Hisso-engined Englerock at the meets, and cleaned up a barrel of money with his ship.

Mike Harlow, chief pilot of Old Colony Airways, of Revere, was also at the trio of barnstorming air meets, and returned to his home field in the Ryan Broughan.

Now the airport over in East Boston looks the same again with the Whitwind motored Travel Air, jointly owned by the "Three Must Get There," Win Young, Wes Temple and George MacDonald, once again on the line.

Charlie Wright, chief pilot of Colonial Flying Service at Hartford, Conn., dropped in with a 165-horsepower Whirlwind-engined Challenger biplane, with a couple of Hartford business men who wanted to get to Bean Town in a hurry.

Wright was formerly relief pilot on the air mail at Brainard Field, Hartford, but the press of his many duties with the flying service caused him to give up the mail job. Charlie says things are ripping along down on the Connecticut river, and that he hasn't time to think twice in the same place.

Drags Man With Him so He Won't Die Alone

New York, Oct. 22 (INS)—"I won't die alone," a man suddenly shouted as he stood waiting for a subway at 96th st. and Broadway, today. And at the same time he seized Joseph Fard just as a train roared out of a tunnel and neared the platform.

Over on to the track the two men fell, fighting desperately. The motorman jammed on the emergency brakes and brought his train to a standstill only a foot from the struggling forms.

The man who had grappled with Fard gave his name as Lake Burke. "I don't know why I did it," he said. He was taken to the Bellevue psychopathic ward and placed under observation.

ARCHER RAPS BAR POLICY

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 22 (AP)—A charge that the section of legal education of the American Bar Association is dominated by the Association's council that the General Association is being used as a "stalking horse" by the College Association, was made today by Gleason L. Archer, Suffolk Law School, dean of a school at Boston, who addressed a branch of the American Bar Association.

Mr. Archer charged an attempt to limit admissions to the bar to lawyers who have completed a stipulated amount of work in an accredited law school, is unfair to the rank and file of Americans who are unable to attend college.

He said the effort of the section to standardize law education is a fight of the college association on night schools.

OCHS TO FACE COLLEGE TRIAL

Providence Oct. 22 When Paul R. Ochs, 24, of Winthrop, Mass. Brown University senior, returns to college from New Haven, he will discover that he has still one more day in court to go through.

According to Dean Samuel Arnold, the senior, now under arrest in New Haven on a charge of stealing a Yale senior's automobile, will be given opportunity to explain his escapade before action of any is taken against him by the university authorities.

Ochs, the son of a chemical broker in Boston, was taken to New Haven last night from Darien, Ct., after charges of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor were dropped by Darien police so that he might be taken in custody by New Haven officials on the more serious charge.

The charge against Ochs is that he stole the auto of William B. Meale of New York, following the Yale-Brown game Saturday.

He is alleged to have ditched another car in Westport by crowding it off the road. His arrest occurred in Greenwich.

The Brown student is a close friend of Russell Colt, son of Ethel Barrymore, the actress, and also a Brown student.

ZIEGFELD HERE FOR OPENING OF SHOW

Lavishly dispensing his specially imported $3 cigars, Florenz Ziegfeld has encamped at the Ritz-Carleton with his usual retinue for the opening tonight, for the first time in this country, of his latest production, "Bitter-Sweet," at the Tremont Theater.

The opening, bands Ziegfeld, Arch Selwyn and Arthur Hopkins, who accompanied him, will also be graced by the presence of many other prominent theatrical and movie producers, including Samuel Goldwyn, who will arrive in Boston today.

Ziegfeld's latest interest, he announced casually between a tirade against the latest styles for women and the possibilities of television in the theatrical business, is "an old-timer named Swanson, who has made the young blood of Hollywood look like a bunch of amateurs.

"It may be a trick of the microphone that has given her a great voice, but whatever it is, I would like to gamble on her for a new show. She will be fine in the new television," he declared.

And this statement lead him to explain his new theatrical plans for producing his shows in the homes as well as in the movie theaters by means of television.

He predicts the biggest revolution in the amusement business will occur in another two years when this invention is complete. This will mean, he contends, that the working man will be able to see a series of Broadway shows in his own home practically free.

Though telephone calls and wires arrived in the usual Ziegfeldian rapidity, the producer did not let it interfere with the trend of his comments, and they were as varied as usual.

"These new styles are hideous," said Ziegfeld. "I don't care whether it is long skirts or short skirts. It is the shape of these new styles that are ugly.

"Of course, it is just a move to make women buy new clothes. My wife threw out several closets full of clothes. She said that not one of her gowns was in style this season."

However, not for long did he discuss styles. His real interest was in his girls. He stated that Evelyn Laye, his English star, will be featured in his first talkie, which he makes this winter in Hollywood.

Following his talkie, he is to go to London to open his Ziegfeld Theater, and he hopes to present Eddie Cantor in "Whoopie" as the first of his American attractions in his English theater.

Asked if he intended to engage Gloria Swanson for a musical production in the near future he smiled in a non-committal way. "Well," he replied, "if she works for me, she would have to take less than $5,000 a week. But, the trouble is, that there are so few that are any good.

Lady Sarah Wilson, Noted Heroine, Dead

London, Oct. 22 (AP)—Lady Sarah Wilson, 64, one of London's famous hostesses and heroine of many adventures in the Boer War, died in London today. Lady Sarah was a daughter of the seventh Duke of Marlborough and was aunt of Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer.

She went through the siege of Mafeking in the Boer War with her husband Col. Gordon Wilson, and for her services in tending sick and wounded soldiers under fire was decorated with the Order of the Red Cross. She was taken prisoner by the Boers, but later was exchanged for a Boer prisoner. Lady Sarah was always in the forefront of new movements. She was said to be the first woman to have her hair shingled.

DRUG TRAFFIC MENACE TO MANKIND

By DR. EMILE TOULOUSE

[illegible] the problem of drug addiction [illegible] the individual society [illegible] morally [illegible]

[illegible] Paris Oct. 22 [illegible] can be [illegible] view the [illegible] drugs as [illegible] of crime, the prevalence [illegible] and medicine on [illegible] depend the welfare [illegible] united state in general and the preservation of a high type of mankind in particular.

Contrary to popular [illegible] number of drug fiends [illegible] world is considerable in the [illegible] alone, during the past [illegible] there were approximately [illegible] drug addicts in a population estimated at 250,000,000. And about 80 per cent of these [illegible] used morphine—an alkaloid of opium. For the defense of all mankind, the peoples of the world must make a collective concerted effort to settle once for all the conflict between the needs of [illegible] life of an addict and his [illegible] a whole. As industry has become powerful through expert organization, so must the war be waged on the international drug [illegible] We must staff our [illegible] with experts, doctor [illegible] who realize what hard [illegible] society would result from the adoption of this [illegible] as well.

In fewer words, through the inroads of the drug traffic and the progression of addicts, a degraded type of mankind results.

Narcotics, without doubt [illegible] their possessors unfit [illegible] fellow-citizens of each [illegible] cessation of physical pain, the addict is freed from painful and [illegible] poisoning pain. The emotionless [illegible] becomes more agreeable and effort is easier.

But [illegible] things [illegible] which [illegible] rule with narcotic [illegible] prolonged use [illegible] the opium derivatives [illegible] the habit forces stronger poisons to obtain the "desired" effect. And the [illegible] women are astonished to find [illegible] arts suffices when not [illegible] an anesthesia creating a state of [illegible]

Then one should see the morphine addict, deprived of his drug. Nervous, agitated, suffering from a deep discomfort, feeling death nearby—his heart is perishing. Covered with profuse perspiration, he is ready to do anything to get the drug which will stop this pain. Even in a whisper, when he has come of his own volition for a cure, he pines to be released so he can search for his drug.

He has no will—no will for anything except the procuring of his drug. He cannot cure himself, the State must cure him. He cannot be cured unless his drug [illegible] bought, can be taken from the illegal handler. This is the problem confronting the world, which I shall discuss in another article.

How a Certain Young Business Man

uses the foremost bank in NEW ENGLAND

In his middle thirties today, he is celebrating his tenth anniversary as a customer of this bank. "That account has its work cut out for it," he remarked to the teller when he opened his savings account—his first contact with this bank.

After three years, however, enough had piled up so that he could afford to invest some of it. A firm believer in the future of utilities, he purchased through The First National Corporation ten shares of the original stock of Electric Bond and Share. His investment has doubled and he is now working for him as collateral in our Commercial Department, for he has borrowed money to remodel a house.

Two years ago he opened a checking account and at the same time decided to concentrate his valuable papers in one safe place—our Safe Deposit Vaults. His will is on file in our Trust Department and it names the Bank as Executor-Trustee.

He sits down frequently with an officer of the Bank and asks the advice of an older head in problems which relate to his business or personal affairs.

He is looking forward to the day when he will enlist the services of the First of Boston Investment Management Corporation to apply its skill and judgment in getting the most out of his investments.

His case is typical of hundreds of young men who have learned how to be helped and not taxed by their bank.

We extend a special invitation to others who recognize the value of such a worthwhile connection.

CHAPTER X

THE general's party had [illegible] went at pig—without, [illegible] last named—any kind.

As a rule Gen. Miller was a [illegible] man, but just now he was hard [illegible]. It was scarcely to be wondered at, then, that he received Lieut. Frayne's statement apologetic as a bull [illegible].

"Perhaps you'd like to explain," the unhappy Frayne began.

"I've explained a hard [illegible]. "No explanation, Frayne. No apologies. Your plans, I can see, went a bit [illegible] understandable, of course, but I might appreciate it more if my dinner had not gone awry also. Good [illegible], of course. Ha, ha! Good night, Frayne."

"Ha, ha!" The dismal laughter of the colonel and the major floated [illegible] as they followed their general into the night.

Livid with anger, Frayne returned to the kitchen.

Marianne was crying. Stag was vainly trying to console her.

"Honest, Marianne, I thought you were just rooking it for Frayne and I just couldn't stand it. I—I'm just so darned crazy about you that I saw red."

He checked himself and snapped into salute as the lieutenant entered.

Frayne's eyes narrowed unpleasantly on the other man's face.

"A fine trick you played, Stag. Disgracing me in the eyes of the whole army."

"Before God Lieutenant Stag spoke earnest[illegible] "I didn't eat your pig."

"What did you do with it?"

"I—I just showed it to some fellows."

"Hmm, to put the blame on your comrades, eh?"

"No, lieutenant! It was some [illegible] double-crossed me," [illegible] the wretched Stag.

With a murderous glance, Frayne blew a whistle. "Very well, I'll put you where you won't be double-crossed for some time."

"Oh, Mairne!" gasped the girl. "What you do to him?"

She gave a little scream as two military police of Frayne's detail entered in response to the whistle.

"Ah, do not send him away. She ran in front of the wretched Stag. "Please—please—it is my fault. I gave him the pegs. I alone am to blame—"

Stag [illegible] her. "You good little kid. I [illegible] won't do any good, honey. It's comin' to me, I guess. But gee, I'm awful sorry I got in this mess."

Putting aside her clutching hands Frayne strode after the three, his face like a thunder-cloud.

Left alone in the big kitchen where the fire was beginning to sink into red embers, Marianne burst into fresh tears. Not even when Andre had marched away, had she felt more desolate.

"Oh [illegible], they take him away, and he did not mean to do wrong [illegible]," came her little shaken whisper. "He only have the heart-burnings for me. Comfort in that, even in the midst of her distress. It was not hard to forgive the man who had erred through jealousy of her.

She was startled by a stealthy step on the back stairs. A timid knock on the door.

Soapy's head came cautiously to view.

"Gosh" his tone was an awed whisper. "They took him away, didn't they? We saw it on to across the yard. Say, was the lousy awful sore?"

He came into the house followed by his shadow, Tom. The faces of the two were unnaturally grave.

Tom's glance took in the girl's wet cheeks. "Gee [illegible] I bet there was hell a poppin'!"

"Ah, Mairne—" Marianne's voice broke. "What they do to him? Do they put him in prison?"

Not even now could Soapy be entirely serious. "For ninety-nine years. He'll have a beard whiter than Santa Claus when he gets out."

"Ah, you make fun of me!" she cried softly. "Please—PLEASE—I appeal to you. I do not know the ways of the American armee. Are they so severe?"

Soapy's round blue eyes traveled over her pleading face. No foolin' the little Frenchie was all worked up over this thing! Gee, she really liked Stag better'n the M. P. He nudged Tom and whispered, "Here's where I do Stag a good turn—"

Turning back to the girl he answered, very solemn.

"Severe! I'll say they're severe! Swipin' an officers' dinner... Say, if the war was still on they'd probably have shot him. As it is maybe they'll just keep him in the guard house until we land in America. He's in WRONG, that boy is!"

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" she bore her hands together. "It was no fault. I bake him angry. He thinks I cook for Monsieur Frayne alone."

Soapy shook his head in solemn regret. "Yep, it's too bad. I guess we won't any of us see him again... Poor Stag... They keep 'em in a dump caboose, you know'n' the rats are pretty bad... I hope for his sake we get back to the States quick."

She gave a little sob. "Oh—what to do! Perhaps—" she raised her wet face and hope

2 GIRLS ARE 'SLASHER' VICTIMS

Give Description of Suspect Seen on "L" Train on Way to Charlestown

Two girls fell victims of a slasher today while riding on an Elevated train, making three in a week since the slasher resumed operations after a summers layoff.

The girls are Miss Madeline Lynch of Mystic ave and Miss Lucy Brock of Bunker Hill st., both Charlestown.

They boarded a Boston-bound train at Thompson sq., Charlestown and discovered, on reaching the Milk st station in the subway, that their dresses had been cut.

A report was made to the elevated officials and the police were notified.

According to the girls, a man about 28 years old was near them in the car. He was dark of medium height and wore a gray suit and cap.

ROB DISABLED VETS; JAILED

Two men were given sentences at hard labor in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta by Judge Brewster in the U. S. District Court today after on had pleaded guilty to embezzling the funds of his brother, a disabled war veteran, and the other had admitted embezzling the funds of his brother-in-law, another disabled veteran.

Ralph W. Taylor, former Huntington ave. dancing teacher, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with embezzlement of $2200 from his brother, Cyrus B. Taylor, a disabled veteran, now an inmate of the government hospital at Bedford. He was sentenced to two years at hard labor at Atlanta.

Isidore A. Katz of Middle st., Fall River, pleaded guilty to the embezzlement of $5000 from his brother-in-law, Angus F. Turner, now an inmate of the veterans hospital at Northampton. He was sentenced to two and one-half years at hard labor at Atlanta. His wife, Florence E. Katz, is now awaiting trial on the same charge.

Asst. U. S. Atty. John J. Walsh conducted prosecution of both cases for the government.

Somerville Man Dies of Blood Poisoning

James E. Duggan of Albion st, Somerville, for 22 years connected with the highway department of that city, died today at the Deaconess Hospital of blood poisoning.

Duggan, who was foreman of cement work, injured a finger a short time ago while a cement walk was being laid on Spring Hill.

For six years he was president of the Somerville City Employes' Union 729, and was a member of Somerville Lodge of Elks. He leaves a wife, eight children, two brothers and two sisters.

LOAN WRECKS 2 WEDDINGS AND ONE CAREER

"Magic Carpets of Ill Fortune" Enter Dramatic Trial of "Kneeland St. Sheik"

Two weddings and a college career went awry when Lewis Lattes of Shawmut ave. South End, borrowed $1000 from his fiancee, Miss Martha Treebagy, rug store proprietor in Kneeland st.

This was testified to today by Miss Treebagy in municipal court, where Lattes went on trial charged with larceny of $300 and three rugs, value dat $1900, all from the girl.

Lattes, known also according to police, as "Sheik Karemby," "Professor Lewis" and "Professor Leo" stole the rugs from the shop, Miss Treebagy testified, after threatening her and giving her such a fright that she fainted.

The $300, she declared was obtained through false representations by Lattes, and with it he got $700 which had been saved up by her brother and sister, the former for his entrance into college and the latter for her wedding, she said.

As a result of Lattes' offence, his former fiancee claimed her own romance was wrecked her sister's marriage was imperiled and the college career desired by her brother Joseph, was put off.

The girl testified she got the money for Lattes on his representations that he could use it to clear up title to $25,000 worth of property he owned in Springfield. The property, he then would sell and they would [illegible] to furnish their new home.

According to her story, Lattes went to the store September 13, threatened her and when she came out of her second he was gone, as were the three rugs.

Daniel T. O'Connell counsel for the girl, told the court he has approximately 200 letters written [illegible] Lattes and which would be read during [illegible] trial.

FIREMEN AVERT GAS BLAST TRAGEDY

Federal Building Threatened as Workman's Sledge Breaks Big Feed Pipe

The possibility of a terrific explosion that might have exacted a heavy toll of life at the old federal building, which is now being razed, was narrowly averted through the quick work of firemen and an engineering crew from the gas company, who cut off the source of supply after a four-inch gas main in the basement of the building became ignited.

According to the authorities the gas blaze resulted from a laborer's sledge hammer accidently hitting the end of the gas pipe located in the basement on the Milk st. side of the building.

Setting a huge tongue of fire flash out from the end of the pipe, Lieut. Peter F. Fabian of Dorchester and a fireman working near the pipe immediately telephoned to fire department.

At the same time, Traffic Officer Frank Feeley on duty at Milk and Federal sts. noticed the flames blaze and sounded an alarm. Deputy Chief Henry Peters in charge, ordered every one of his men into the close quarters where the firemen were to battle the suburban blaze which threatened for a time to spread to the upper floors.

In the midst of the fire a huge hail of plaster and other debris was dropped down into the center of the building from a couple of floors above by workmen. The cloud of dust created in this way was a tremendous hardship on the firemen for several minutes.

Owing to difficulty in locating the shut-off on the pipe itself that was afire it became necessary for the company crew to shut off a main pipe feeding between Congress and Washington sts.

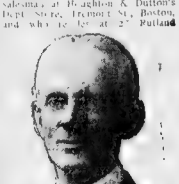
"I CONSIDER BON-TONE A REMARKABLE MEDICINE"

All Rundown And Lacking In Strength—Famous Tonic Scores Quick Victory

I consider Bon-Tone a remarkable medicine," says Mr. Thomas C. Clair, who is employed as a shoe salesman at Brighton & Dutton's Dept. Store, Belmont St., Boston, and who lives at 27 Putland



Mr. Thomas C. Clair

Square, this city. "Before starting the use of Bon-Tone, I was in terrible shape. I had no appetite, and what little I did eat caused me great distress. Gas bothered, causing awful pains; constipation was so bad that I had a bad case of hemorrhoids—my nerves were all shot to pieces, and I was ordered to go away and take a complete rest—I was so rundown

"When Dr. Stockwell, my dentist, of 175 Tremont Street, Boston, recommended Bon-Tone, I was sort of skeptical, but thought it wouldn't hurt to try it. Five bottles of this great medicine seemed to work a miracle for me. I am now in first-class condition; instead of awakening mornings all tired out, and the thought of work being a burden, it is now a pleasure. Every symptom that I suffered from has been corrected, and I can truthfully say that I feel better today than I have in ten years. To think that I suffered so for three years, and then in a short while Bon-Tone made my pains and aches something of the past. It is my wonder, therefore, that I am enthusiastic in my praise of this medicine! Bon-Tone is a real systematic treatment, which is designed to bring relief as Nature gives it. Bon-Tone's fourteen herbs attack indigestion, stomach trouble, constipation, nervousness, etc., at their origin. Bon-Tone also produces amazing relief from other troubles, such as certain types of rheumatism, disordered kidneys, headaches, etc. You can't go wrong on Bon-Tone — there is nothing 'just as good.'"

Go to Epstein Drug Store, Scollay Square, Boston, and meet our representative. He will explain more about Bon-Tone and give you a free booklet.

For your convenience Bon-Tone is for sale in South Boston at John S. Austin's Drug Store, Perkins Square, and in Cambridge at the Cole Drug Co., 636 Mass. Ave., Central Square.

Cambridge police are investigating a woman's story that her husband was held up for $750 by a man posing as a Harvard college special policeman.

Mrs. Anthony Coyne of Hampshire st., Cambridge, told East Cambridge police the man had obtained the money after threatening to send her husband to prison for 15 to 20 years.

She said her husband was stopped near Norton's woods, between Beacon and Oxford sts.; that the alleged officer showed a badge and said to Coyne:

"I am a policeman at Harvard college. If you want to get out of this mess you'll have to pay me."

She said her husband and the "officer" went to Cambridgeport Savings Bank, where Coyne drew the money and handed it over.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WHILE Edith Wharton's novel of New York society in the 1870's, "The Age of Innocence," was a best seller, it is doubtful if it would have been considered a good subject for a play. Its characters are too conventional, its plot too slight, its dialogue too restrained. But Margaret Wycherly, Katharine Cornell and Guthrie McClintic have made a play of it, and it is now at the Wilbur.

Miss Wharton's story is told in retrospect. Newland Archer, a young lawyer, is engaged to May Welland, a girl of his own social set. Then the Countess Olenska, a cousin of May's, returns to New York from Europe. She is separated from her husband, a Polish nobleman, and is the subject of much gossip. Archer falls in love with her, but she refuses to run away with him. Instead she sails for Europe, and Archer marries May.

Miss Wycherly has made a play of this by dramatizing the scenes in which Archer and the Countess appear. Thus the story is told entirely from Archer's point of view. Miss Wycherly has also made the Countess a more sympathetic character than she is in the novel. Mrs. Wharton's Countess is a rather cold and calculating woman. Miss Wycherly's Countess is a warm-hearted, impulsive woman who is driven to her fate by the cruelty of her family.

Miss Cornell plays the Countess with a fine sense of the character's emotional possibilities. Ian Wolfe is a satisfactory Archer, and Brenda Dalzie is charming as May. Isabel Irving, Katherine Stewart, Frank Andrews and Susan Steel are excellent in the supporting roles.

The production is handsome and the costumes are authentic. The play is well worth seeing.

IT'S a long, long road to Rome, but the Messrs Shubert have gone further, even as far as the Adriatic. Into "A Night in Venice" they have crammed and packed about a year's playing under the theatrical sun in their mammoth show at the Shubert until it runs the gamut from burlesque to real art, taking in all the way stations. It's a scream, a riot, and the cast's meow of an extravaganza.

When the curtain failed to go up at the appointed hour, last night for Ted Healy and company, it soon began clapping their hands to get action. But the belated curtain was worth waiting for, and before it was finally down again, along about midnight's waning hour, that same audience was weary with applauding.

Pick the stars? It is almost as easy to scoop-net them out of the firmament. Ted Healy helped make the big cake, saw that the house got liberal portions, and even partook liberally of the fun himself. This irrepressible comedian, with a way all his own, took the baton out of the producer's hands and put the production across. Boston has seen no better laugh-getter as master of ceremonies than he in the savagely comic cabaret scene toward the shank of the evening.

It took two roustabouts, Joe and Pete Michon, to "stop the show." Burlesque and vaudeville never saw their betters for similar stuff; probably every one out front joined in giving these two a hand. Next to them were Beth and Betty Dodge, just back from a four years' stay abroad. They worked hard and often, they are beautiful, they are clever, and their dancing is stellar. Next to the Michons they got the most applause, if the human race can be any judge of that continuing din of appreciative demonstration.

"A Night in Venice" has passeantry feminine pulchritude, barrels of ability, speed, pep and about everything in the entire calendar. It is one of the brightest and most of the most mirthful revues that has ever made a stopover at Boston

Splendid Program for Koussevitzky Recital

Dr. Serge Koussevitzky has arranged a most unusual program for his double bass recital at Symphony Hall tonight. He will have assisting him Mr. Fraser Gange, the Scottish baritone, and a small orchestra of members of the Boston Symphony conducted by Mr. Richard Burgin, concert master. Mr. Pierre Luboshuts will play the piano parts of the various compositions.

For the first number on the program Dr. Koussevitzky has transcribed Mozart's "Concerto for Bassoon" and added a cadenza by himself.

Barry's Clever Comedy "Holiday" at Plymouth

Philip Barry's Smart comedy, "Holiday," opened its local engagement at the Plymouth last evening. It tells an amusing story of a young man who proposed to spend his youth in idleness and his old age at work. It will be reviewed later.

Jake . . . . . Wesley Hill

A LARGE audience voiced intelligent appreciation of a magnificent bit of drama at the opening of "Porgy." Theater Guild production of Dubose and Dorothy Heywood's justly renowned folk play at the Hollis last night.

This artistic triumph depicts negro life in the Old South, the scene being laid in the darky quarter of Charleston. The powerful emotions and strong spiritual consciousness of the negro race are brought out in a manner which leaves one deeply stirred. Humor and tragedy bound through the production with a rapidity that leaves one at times breathless.

Many and varied are the scenes, and the producer, Rouben Mamoulian, has shown great genius in staging this spectacular melodrama with its tremendous detail and mechanical effects. Cleon Throckmorton, as usual, has done his effective settings.

Magnificent emotional parts were played by Rose McClendon, Frank Wilson, Jack Carter, Evelyn Ellis, Georgette Harvey, Percy Verwayne and Wesley Hill.

The farewell engagement of this splendid company which last played here two years ago is limited to two weeks. The original cast is once again seen and the production is intact.

FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000 TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1929 FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000

Coach McKenney Will Rebuild Boston College Line

REGULARS TO LOSE PLACES

BOSTON COLLEGE'S forward wall will look a little different next Saturday afternoon when the Eagles resume their old stand at Fenway Park with the conquering of Canisius as the work in hand.

These new faces will probably be seen according to present indications in the practice work at Newton. Bud Gorman will take John Maloney's guard berth; Harry Downes will be at center in place of Andy Anderson, and Peter Herman will be at left tackle in place of Henry Quince.

This upheaval is the result of th poor showing of the regulars against Boston University out in Ohio. Al Morelli, John Dyson and Bud Gorman were the only ones who seemed afraid the turf out there was harder than at Fenway. Even the great Charley Murphy of a year ago failed to impress Charley's work has been inc factor because he's playing fading back game and not charging in. At that Murphy has been going as well as the average college wing back, but Murphy gave promise a year ago of being one of the season's best. This fall And he hasn't been living up to promise.

Anyone who doesn't seem to get a workout in practice work is proving a rabbit in a game. He smear a play and left, opens up big he for the backs to a Charley Clisby, and is down the field under the ball luck to ha made more than a reserve and his Monday's enough stuff t get a chance to start a game.

FRESHMAN RAVE

Development of Herman is nothing more than expected. Pete is the freshman at B. C. He was on the scrub line with injuries at the start of the season and then suffered a broken collar bone in the Villa game.

Coach Dorais had heard Young, Herman and Downes all had been b with injuries at the beginning of Herman to the regular line. But Young, in 19 years of football never played the role of a cripple. He was always in the game and he didn't like it a year when Morgan and Herman sat on the bench grumbling with the referee decisions.

Dorais sensed that Herman's recovery would mean his demotion for Henry Dianese, regular tackle, is coming very well. So Jack went out and showed him. He played a whole of a game against Dayton University. In fact, he was one of the outstanding B. C. linesmen.

His mates at the Heights are now calling his "Tiger Jack." He has been honored with the title, spoken of as the greatest of all B. C. centers. Jack Heaphy, Young pays the same type of slashing game that the "Greph" once displayed.

McKenney feels that Young, a fourth year man on the first team, Herman will play at left tackle with "Tiger Jack" at right. Which means that Dianese will do his fighting watching unless something changes the situation.

MORELLI TO STAY

While all these shifts are taking place, not much is being said of Al Morelli. But it is the only member of the line who started the season and whose position has never been in doubt. There's nobody pushing him out of there.

Because he's buried in the middle of the line his work escapes notice. But proof that he's been knocking the opposition dead is found in the fact that he's one man in the line that Coaches McKenney and Mc-Mannus are not shifting about.

Anderson and Downes at center are about as even as centers go. Anderson maintains an edge in passing but Downes makes up for this in his defensive ability. Downes can smell a forward pass before the other quarterback calls for it.

A shift in this position would make a great deal of difference one way or the other. But Columbus discovered America, they say, and McKenney wants to start Downes in a game. Something might come of it.

The Boston College backfield will stay as is unless Joe feels that he can whip Canisius without Capt Creedon and Joe Mirley, both of whom are under slight wraps. With the Fordham invasion looming McKenney may save his two backs as much as possible.

Joe should have a real good team by the time of the Fordham game. His "green" material is coming fast with each game.

MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

MR. BOSTON found a regiment of boxers training at Jim Toland's Gym.

Who started the war? the veteran asked the genial Jim Toland who used to be a cop but quit the racket after he got flat feet or something equally as dangerous.

"The boys are getting ready for a busy indoor season," replied Toland. "They are all steamed up because Sharkey knocked out Loughran," interrupted Johnny Buckley. "They all want to get into the big money."

Mr. Boston noticed Alex MacLean, former manager of Jack Johnson Matty Baldwin (Robert Gallant) and other famous ring luminaries leaning against a friendly wall.

"What brought you here?" demanded Mr. Boston.

"I wanted to get a peek at Sea Cliaby, that big colored fellow now working in the ring," said Alex. "He is managed by Jimmy O'Brien the old California light weight whom I once piloted. Cliaby has fought some good men including George Godfrey. I went to help O'Brien get Cliaby started in Boston.

PHIL BUCCOLA and Tom Palumbo then took possession of the ring Sammy Fuller, who clashes with Jake Zerambo at the Garden on Friday night, breezed into action.

"Fuller looks as if he is in good condition," said Mr. Boston after he watched the American Paulino Villa do his stuff. "Sammy is punching hard and is displaying much aggressiveness. He has got down to serious training and with Buccola and Palumbo directing affairs he should go a long way along the fistic trail."

ZERAMBY followed Fuller into the ring. Jake sparkled in his boxing, while his punching was sharp and clean.

"The kid has a million dollars worth of class," said Al Lacy. "He has marvelous legs and can move around the ring like a master. I look for him to win over Fuller Friday night."

A. L. MELLO, New England welterweight and middleweight champion dropped over to tell Mr. Boston.

"You look rested," said Mr. Boston.

"I feel fine," went on the lanky ring star. "Let me tell you a few things: easy during the summer and am now eager to creep into action again."

Bobby Goldman remarked he would start Mello against some fair opposition and gradually work him into another big money shot.

MR. BOSTON watched Stanley Stasiak, the wrestler, working on the big bag.

"That fellow trains harder than anybody in the gym," asserted Mr. Boston. "I guess Stanley has to work hard to keep his weight down."

The "Lion of Poland then did some wrestling and furnished everybody with some thrills and plenty of laughs.

"Stasiak is the greatest show man in the world," chirped Mr. Boston.

BIG BOY RAWSON, who collides with Jack DeMave at the Arena on next Monday night, wrecked a few punching bags.

"The DeMave fight is the most important match I have booked for Rawson," asserted Mike Carr. "They tell me that nobody has been able to stop DeMave. Well watch him tumble if Larry clips him on the button."

MICHIGAN NEEDS LESSON BEFORE HARVARD GAME

The above photo, taken in the Michigan-Ohio State game, indicates that Michigan linemen charge in too high and, consequently, failed to be effective, being easily put out of the play. Note the peculiar "side rush" of the Ohio team, the entire line and backfield charging at a sharp angle. Ohio defeated Michigan, 7 to 0. (Associated Press photo.)

Finnegan Bout for Winner of Zeramby-Fuller Go

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

RIVALS SET FOR BITTER BATTLE

WITH an opportunity to face Dick "Honeyboy" Finnegan, Dorchester southpaw, stake for the winner, the return ring clash between Jake Zeramby, 19-year-old Lynn, mobster, and Sammy Fuller 8th End Italian, promises to sult in one of the most thrilling affairs staged in this ity this year.

Both Fuller and Zeramby have been demanding a meeting with Finnegan, who has remained idle during the past few months, but now that the Dorchester boy has started training again, Hub fans anticipate seeing him in action against the victor in Friday's bout.

It is doubtful if ever before two more bitter rivals ever stepped into the ring than these hard hitting boys, each of whom has agreed to make 134 pounds for this bout. Both boys are training at the Boland Gymnasium, although it has been necessary to keep them apart in the gym.

In an effort to make the return meeting between these rivals one of the outstanding fistic shows of the season, the Garden has arranged a bang-up preliminary card. The entire card will consist of 54 rounds of boxing, sufficient to satisfy the most exacting follower of the game.

A double semifinal will feature the show, two eight-round bouts between rivals of recognized ability. In an eight-round bout, Joe Zelinsky of Binghamton, N. Y., who made such a big hit in his recent bout with Arthur Flynn, will oppose Willie Oster of New London. Both of these boys depend upon a knockout punch to win, and for reason the fans will see plenty of hard hitting.

Victor Levan, Italian middleweight champion, will meet Larry Gaona of Cambridge, while Phil ... of Syracuse, who holds two ... wins in Rocky Graham, will oppose Johnny Delano of East Boston, and Joe Thomas of Des Moines will face Joe Taveleri of Cambridge.

Frankie Moore will appear in an ... and semifinal

BATTLES BAKER BOY

South Boston's star heavyweight contender has a real war on his hands when he fights Johnny Risko, Baker Boy, in Cleveland tonight. Maloney is splendid condition.

RAWSON TO GET HARDEST TEST NEXT MONDAY

Larry "Big Boy" Rawson, Dorchester knocker-out, will face the hardest test Monday night in the Arena, when he will meet Jack McMahon, scrapping fool from Jersey City, in the feature bout attraction of the Arena Club.

Rawson has stepped up more consistently than any lightweight in Boston history. He has scored 22 knockouts in 23 fights and 17 of them in the first and second rounds. Some of the customers have had their another lesson, while others say that he will be completely eliminated from the lightweight picture when he faces his first top notcher.

He is about to face a top-notcher, for McMahon has beaten Jack Shaskey, Jim Maloney, Tom Heeney and John Risko, to mention but a few. He has a chin of granite and a scrap-iron. He has never been knocked out. He proved his punching ability by flooring Jim Maloney seven times at Braves Field. The large question mark that looms in Rawson's background will be removed next Monday night. He will be made or broken.

The Big Boy is beginning to attract national attention by his heavy punching. He obliterated Joe Monte in one minute and 1[illegible] and Monte was a[illegible]n ago. He defeated James J. It is a mistake to believe that all mental diseases are incurable. What makes them difficult to cure is that persons wait too long before seeking treatment. The mind can and should be examined and treated the same as any other organ of the body.

PRESIDENT WILSON awarded Distinguished Service Medals to Marshals Foch, Joffre and Haig and to Generals Pétain, Diaz, Pershing and Gillain (the Belgian chief of staff) on October 22, 1918.

HASTY MARRIAGES ARE NOT ADVISABLE

But 3-Years' Engagement Seems Long, Says Expert

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

HASTY marriage is not a desirable one from any point of view. We all know the old proverb about marrying in haste and repenting at leisure.

But when a man has gone about with a young woman for three years, about broaching the subject of marriage is there any likelihood that their companionship will lead to a proposal? In such a case is there any way in which the young woman in the case can get a little clearer understanding of where she stands in his affections and intentions?

Beatrice Fairfax (© N. E. News)

"Dear Miss Fairfax" writes downhearted on this theme. "Every day I read your wonderful letters to others. Will you please help me?

"I am 25 years old—a divorcee—and have a sweet little girl six years old.

"I have been keeping steady company with a man ten year my senior for three years. I have learned to love him more than I ever loved anyone except my baby. And he has never told me even that he liked me in all this time.

"We have had several misunderstandings, and he would stay away for a day or so until I would call him up or write him and ask him to come back.

"We are not engaged. He has never mentioned the subject. But we did agree to wait a while and see with answers are. If told me were the first one that he would never marry any woman. But one week I feel he is like other men and will some day want to settle down to a wife and home.

"He doesn't make a very large salary. But I would be willing to work forever to help him if we were married. I know what his means and I would rather [illegible] all I do—continue our [illegible] Or shall I have an [illegible] with him and see [illegible] ends to do? I believe [illegible] for me but he [illegible] of a very quiet nature. And I wonder if he really likes to admit he loves a woman.

"I can't figure him out. He comes to see me most every night. And I know he doesn't go with anyone else. I'll admit on several occasions I went out with another fellow and he found it out. And I don't believe he puts much confidence in me or any woman. For once we started not to go with at some time I was the one to [illegible]

"He hasn't believe I'm a trap for him. If only he knew how much I love him he would feel different. I'm a [illegible] Please tell me how to [illegible] him how much I care for him. Your answer will be forever appreciated.

DOWNHEARTED

I am glad to help you if I can, downhearted. Your three years' companionship with your friend would not go on as it is, indefinitely. For you are a young woman entitled to love, marriage and a secure home for yourself and your little girl. Your friend, in coming to see you nightly, keeps away other suitors, who might be serious and in turn, awaken your love. And he does not profess to love you—in fact, he has told you quite frankly he will never marry.

Yes, my dear, it is up to you to come to a better understanding in one way. It may be wise to convince him how much he means to you, but it is vastly more important to prove to him how much you mean to him.

He may be too shy to propose at once but he will not forget what you have said, and if he loves you and is free to marry—are you sure he is?—he will perhaps ask you to be his wife. If he does not propose, my dear, with your subtle assistance, he sure it will be because he does not wish to do so and really is determined not to marry you.

In that case, if you value your future happiness, you will have a weekly friendly but frank talk with him, tell him you know he has no intentions whatsoever, so far as you are concerned and ask that is the case, you cannot [illegible] him so much of your time because you hope to marry one day. Then after that, see him less often and other friends more. Time and distance will turn your thoughts from him.

Even if you have to move to another neighborhood or community, it will be better to break away from a man who is absorbing you, preventing you from marriage and monopolizing your youth. Don't you agree?

SHARP GAINS ACHIEVED IN WALL ST.

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

New York, Oct. 22 (AP) After a week of severe declines, the stock market finally turned upward today with a tremendous rebound comparable to the sharp upturn which came upon the heels of the drastic setback of last Thursday and Friday. Scores of stocks sold up from 3 to nearly 30 points, and many to new high levels for the year in the early trading.

Traders felt that the violent sweeping out of unwarranted bargain accounts in the past two days when trading facilities were overwhelmed with frenzied selling, in a large measure had corrected a severe technical position and an inflated price level and had placed the market once more on a firm footing.

DAY'S NEWS PLEASING.

Commission house advices generally maintained a [illegible] attitude, however, [illegible] tendency to look [illegible] irregular trading for a [illegible]

A statement by Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank, just returned from Europe, to the effect that he considered the market had had a healthy reaction and that the decline had probably overrun itself had a salutary effect upon Wall Street sentiment.

The day's news was largely pleasing, including dividend [illegible] extra dividend by Norfolk & Western, several satisfactory earnings statements, [illegible] announcements which went those of General Electric, American Superpower and a [illegible] split of a [illegible] share distributing to retard accumulated preferred dividend.

TRADING QUIETS DOWN.

Much of the upturn occurred in the first hour of trading, when shorts rushed to cover in response to the feeling that the market had reached bottom. Trading during the first half-hour was almost equal to that of yesterday, but trading quieted down somewhat as the session wore on.

Western Union surged 20 points to a new high at 220. Rumors persist that a split-up is pending, although firm denials have been issued by the management. J. I. Case moved up 30 points, Columbia Carbon 29 and Eastman Kodak 14.

Among issues gaining from 9 to 12 points were Brooklyn Chamber Stone & Webster, Anchor Cap, Standard Gas, Underwood, Elliott, American Machine and Foundry, National Biscuit, General Electric, American Water Works and Columbia Gas part paid.

Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Chesapeake & Ohio, American Can, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, and U. S. Steel were among shares mounting from 4 to 8 points.

Bidding for the speculative leaders continued briskly into the final hour. U. S. Steel moved above 216, and Johns-Manville and Westinghouse Electric also manifested increased strength. Nimium overcame its early sluggishness and moved up fast, while Otis Elevated rose more than 6 points.

The closing tone was strong. Total sales approximated [illegible] shares.

Seventh Bank Joins Worcester Merger

Directors of Leominster National Bank and Worcester County National Bank of Worcester have recommended a merger of the two institutions, making the seventh bank in Worcester County to be merged with the Worcester County National. Basis of exchange of shares not announced. Capital stock of Leominster National Bank is $150,000, resources $400,000 and deposits $2,500,000.

When mergers are completed the Worcester County Nationals, [illegible] will have resources approximating $30,000,000 and deposits of $10,000,000.

The banks to be merged will be the Worcester County National, Worcester County National Bank of Barre, North Brookfield National Shrewsbury National Clinton Trust Co., First National Bank of Webster, Fitchburg National Bank & Trust Co, and the Leominster National

Commodity Price Index Is at Low

After several months of rather erratic movements, commodity prices as a whole are now at their lowest level of the year. The Industry Irving Fisher index for last week was 94.6 per cent of the 1926 average, the lowest for 1929. Last year's low was 95.1 per cent. The 1921 high was 99.2 per cent for the week ended July 2. Thus it is readily apparent that there has been an appreciable recession in [illegible] commodities [illegible] accompany the stock market [illegible] tion of recent months.

A month ago the weakest commodities selling at or near their 1929 lows are coffee, peanuts, lead, tin, cotton and rubber. The coffee market was recently demoralized as a result of new competition. Rio No. 7 is now 12¾ cents per pound, the lowest for this year, and compares with a high of 26½ cents.

Pierce-Arrow Gain in Quarter Large

Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co. reports of September quarter consolidated net profit of $710,945, equal, after preferred dividends, to $3.01 a share on 197,250 class "A" shares, against net loss of $365,706 in the same quarter of 1928. Nine months' net profit was $2,456,073 after interest, depreciation, etc., or $11.23 a share on the class "A" stock, against net loss of $1,037,929 in the same period of 1928.

Heavy Loss in Securities May Hurt Business

Stockholders Now Equal Two of Every Three U. S. Families

By B. C. Forbes

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—We will have fewer customers on our books tomorrow than we had today," remarked a member of a large Stock Exchange firm when the bottom fell out of the market in Friday's close. He meant that many would be forced to respond to demands for additional margin and would therefore be sold out on Saturday morning. That many did sell out is certain. But many stocks had their holdings thrown overboard on Saturday proved clearly enough by the market's action.

B. C. Forbes

Will the breaking of the speculative boom have a depressing effect upon sentiment and upon business throughout the country?

My reasoning is that unfortunately, it will. Many of my friends and my former friends have been indulging during the last two years in comforts and luxuries which they would not have felt warranted in having had their incomes been confined to their salaries or ordinary earnings. Those making money in the stock market and felt justified in "blowing in" profits. Thus they have been distinctly heavier consumers because of the rise in stocks.

Is it not logical to expect curtailed buying by those who lately have suffered severe losses in the stock market? Investors as well as speculators will doubtless be influenced to pull in their pendulous horns. A man or family whose security holdings shrink 25 or 35 or 50 per cent in market value cannot but feel less rich—and, consequently, less disposed to spend money freely.

Now, when we consider that the total number of stockholders scattered throughout the country is equal to two out of every three families, it will be realized that a collapse in stock quotations cannot fail now to have a more widespread effect than when the United States had relatively few stock owners.

It was because I couldn't drive such a line of reasoning out of my mind that I persisted in counseling caution when the speculative orgy was raging. It was not difficult to look ahead to the time when the crazy upbidding of stock prices by almost every man, Dick and Harry would reach the bursting point. And it was equally easy to foresee that the reaction would be far from pleasant, not only to those having their fingers burned, but to business and employment in general.

In Wall Street, the long-delayed inevitable has lately been happening. This month has brought two severe relapses, entailing the closing cut of many accounts at a loss. True, the early October smash was followed by a swift and substantial recovery. But it didn't last long. Whether last week's bad dip will be followed by an important rebound remains to be seen. My guess is that at least nine out of every ten stocks on the New York Stock Exchange have seen their 1929 tops and that many will sink lower within the next few months.

However, having been repeatedly wrong before in guessing when the end of the boom would come, I may be equally wrong again in this interpretation of the outlook.

For my part, I have lately lightened my holdings of stocks which I bought on optimistic expectations rather than on actual earnings. I have lost my rest for expectations and have developed a liking for preferred stocks and bonds netting a good income—not completely overlooking prospective profits as well as having the carrying conversion privileges.

Should stock market values continue to crumble, the irregularity which has already broken out here and there in business may become more pronounced.

However, too much importance appears to be attached to the curtailment in automobile production. It is well known in the trade that General Motors, Ford and other leading companies are busily preparing to bring out improved models. These should be announced and in production before the end of the year, thus stimulating purchase of steel and other products. So much has been the falling off in steel-buying by motor manufacturers that the steel industry's rate of production and sales have been rather severely affected—so much so that even unprecedented ordering by railway companies has not proved a complete offset. In consequence, prices have weakened.

The Federal Reserve authorities may be expected to use their influence to insure normal money rates. This may help industry and business more than it may help the stock market.

Setback in Stocks Likely to Tone Up Bond Market

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK Oct. 22—Virtual breaks in stock prices such as the Street has recently been witnessing, is doubtless the most effective way of whooping up interest in vastly neglected bonds.

Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, hinted of a change in conditions last winter by advising the advice to "buy bonds." Ten days ago a leading brokerage house interrupted the vogue of all but seek the leading fashioners and distributors of bonds, who were delegates to the fifty-second annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America at Quebec, to study ways to the probable comeback of the bond and bond market at some future time.

If the public which has been on a financial joyride, becomes investment-minded again, the change will be helpful to foreign countries in the matter of arranging loans here, to the domestic construction trade. Also, to railroad financing in the United States and to all who depend on improved funds. The tendency of all one finds in the bonds and stocks has upset the economic equilibrium, and has already begun to hurt business in some directions.

Some groups of stocks have been overexpanded, but it is to be hoped that the public will not rush equally blindly to the other extreme. If the heralded improvement in economic sophistication of the public is a reality, there ought to be a sharp increase in discriminating investment in reassessing the true worth of equity securities. The favorable arguments for common stocks, priced at a reasonable relationship to assets and earnings, still hold and should deserve a permanent place in the portfolio of many individual investors. Yet the changes in the economic scene point to the wisdom of altering the present ratios between holdings of stocks and bonds.

J. R. Edwards, Cincinnati investment dealer, in a message to this column, charges that the investment diet of the American public has become unbalanced. Edwards states that the present absorption of investments is at the ratio of 90 per cent stocks and 10 per cent bonds. Mr. Edwards points out, "but even this does not clearly state the actual facts. The 10 per cent bonds can now be floated unless some convertible provision is provided, or stock purchase warrants attached. Now, as convertible bonds eventually are apt to be converted into stock, the actual ratio of absorption of investments is more nearly equal to 90 per cent in stocks and 10 per cent in bonds."

Now with this tremendous absorption of equity stocks on junior securities, is not our investment program totally unbalanced?

The result of this distortion is that many conservative buyers are turned into 'speculators' and 'gamblers.' Col. Leonard P. Ayers of Cleveland, has pointed out that the established standards of value for securities no longer exist, that old standards of value for securities no longer exist, that old standards of value for securities no longer exist, that old

OUTLOOK FOR CANADA MINES FOUND GOOD

Montreal, Que., Oct. 22—According to the natural resources department of the Canadian National Railways, mineral production in Canada has shown a marked increase this year over 1928. Figures available to date indicate that total production for 1929 will be more than $300,000,000.

Canada's most important metallic mineral are copper gold, nickel, lead, silver and zinc. The first six months of the current year have shown an increased output for all of these except silver. Copper and nickel have furnished the greatest increase, for which both of greater volume produced and the higher copper prices that have prevailed throughout the year.

This year's increase in production, however, by no means reflects entirely the progress that is being made in the mining industry. Metallurgical work is now in process of erection in the Sudbury district, Ontario, when placed in operation, will result in a great increase in the production of copper and nickel.

In Northern Quebec the smelter of the Noranda Mines Co. will increase its present capacity before the end of the current year which will result in a large step-up in ore tonnage output during the year. Recently in 1928, the first year of production, yielded more than 30,000,000 pounds of copper.

On the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border, work on the Flin Flon metallurgical plants for the treatment of the copper-zinc sulphides of the Flin Flon and adjacent Sherritt-Gordon mines is progressing rapidly. The completion of the smelter and refinery plant is expected by the end of 1930, for which undertaking will mark the beginning of a new development which will add materially to the already nearly impressive total of metallic minerals.

In the field of prospecting, old-fashioned hit and miss methods are giving way to more scientific and systematic exploration and development today by far the largest number of trained and experienced engineers ever employed in this work in the history of the country. Prospecting is taking place as a means of transportation and communication is almost general in the more remote regions.

BOND MARKET IS HIGHER

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The young but sturdy bullish movement in bonds received encouragement in the leadership of a representative assortment of issues.

Nourished by a lively investment demand that has been attracted by offering a fixed return, the bond list continued to profit by what has been termed the "flight" from stocks" as investors sought a resting place for funds heretofore placed in equity securities.

Numerous rails were taken briskly by the investing throng, while securities were somewhat irregular in contrast to their recent strength. Gains of a point or more appeared in Delaware & Hudson 3½s, Erie first 4s, Louisville & Nashville 4½s, Denver & Rio Grande 4½s and Carthage & Adirondack 4s.

Burlington general 4s, Missouri Pacific 4s, Northern Pacific 4s, Kansas City Southern 4s, Pennsylvania general 5s, New Haven 4s and several others.

Utilities and industrials showed strength in some instances, with Telephone First 6s, North American Edison 5½s, Pacific Telephone first, Chile Copper 5s, Purity Bakeries 5s, Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s and Standard Oil of New York joined from one to a point. International Paper 6s and Liggett & Myers were up about 1½.

Convertibles were in the account of themselves, as was to be expected from the turn in stocks. International Telephone 4½s were marked up 7 points while American Telephone 4½s gained more than 3. Radio 5½s, Loew 6s, Irons 6s soared 4 points, American International 5½s and Missouri Pacific 5s about 3 each and Atchison 4½s a full point. American I. G. Chemical 5½s hovered around yesterday's close, as did the Texas Corporation 5s.

Dominion Stores Merger Is Approved

Stockholders of Dominion Stores Co., Ltd., at a meeting today approved proposal to acquire 50 per cent of the outstanding Class "B" voting stock of Lowney Grocery Co., Ltd., and approximately 50 per cent of the outstanding Class "A" non-voting stock.

Shareholders also ratified creation and issue of $5,000,000 6 per cent cumulative preferred, par $100, with stock purchase warrants, and offer of 208,187 additional shares of common to stockholders on terms to be determined later.

Joint Investors Reports Earnings

Net earnings of Joint Investors, Inc., for the first nine months of this year amounted to $275,764.60, it is announced today. Unrealized appreciation of assets during the same period totaled $360,116.24.

After payment of dividends aggregating $2.25 per share, the asset value of the Class A common stock has appreciated since January 1, 1929, from $30.53 to $57.12.

Says Deaconess Is Accredited Hospital

Editor Boston American:

Recently you published a list of Massachusetts hospitals fully accredited by the American College of Surgeons. The list was no doubt furnished you from Chicago, where the American College is now in session.

This hospital has been an accredited hospital for a number of years, but was not included in your published list. I immediately wired Dr. M. T. MacEachern, president of the association, and have had his reply stating that we were on the list.

You can understand that we are very jealous about this, and would appreciate anything you can be able to do to correct this error in the mind of the public.

Finds Conditions in Russia Secure

Editor Boston American:

In a recent issue you published an article on two English real miners who recently visited Russia at the expense of their employer. It is reported that they tell tales of a harrowing life in Russia. One Crane even cursed the Soviets for their hypocrisy.

Will you permit me, as one of a group of four Americans who have just returned from Russia after a summer spent in an attempt to ascertain the conditions there, to summarize he result of our experiences.

We visited Leningrad, Moscow, Kieve, Odessa, Sevastopol, Yalta, Sembferopol and their environs.

We are a unit in our testimony that there is no country in all Europe in which the external life is more settled and secure for the masses, that it goes on with safety, regularity and decorum. We entered and inspected shops, schools, factories, museums, theaters and institutions of various classes, and interviewed persons in all walks of life, and were agreeably astounded both by what we saw and heard.

The Russians have launched and are step by step unfolding a colossal new economic program. They are building something new and unique. If not interfered with by the militaristic nations of the world, they will, in my opinion, astound the world by their achievements within a period of five years.

Asks Probe of Edison Heating

Editor Boston American:

The decision rendered by the Public Utility Commission, and which refers to the request of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, must have been very interesting reading to those of us who have to do business with that corporation.

Not only are they generators of electricity for the use of light and power, but they are also dispensers of steam heat, which they are selling to a great many of our large buildings in the heart of the city.

It is clear that they might take care of the heating of these big buildings, they secured from our city government the right to open up the streets for the purpose of laying their steam pipes through them. This necessitated, of course, expenditures of large sums of money.

In this way, together with other unnecessary expenditures, the Edison people have been able to show how it has cost them more to carry on their business than it would had they carried on the business only of selling electricity. They have monopolized to a great extent, not only the selling of electricity in this city, but the heating of many of our large buildings.

Why should Boston's streets be given to the Edison people for carrying on steam heating when it means that the streets that have recently been reconstructed must be dug up in order that they might lay their steam pipes? We would call your attention to Tremont st., which has been recently resurfaced by the city, and ask you to examine it now that the Edison people have opened it up, and see what condition you find it in.

If the Public Utility Commission are going to investigate the Edison Illuminating Company of Boston on their lighting rates, let them also investigate the heating department of that corporation.

H. M. COMERFORD,
Secretary Steam Operating Engineers.

Mentally Weak Hamper Nation

Editor Boston American:

A speaker some time ago said, in addressing a large assembly of people in the rooms of the 20th Century Club, that "America already has the lowest grade of morals of any of the great modern nations."

Mongrelism has more feeble-minded persons to care for every year. The country is spending billions of dollars yearly in caring for the unfit, either in institutions or in private asylums.

People who are destroyed immoral and sent to prison, should be sent to a psychopathic hospital instead. They are mentally defective. No nation can function properly or humanely with a large part of its intellectual life suppressed, overburdened, yes, warped, with support of those who are of no use to society, themselves or their families. The old Spartans answer these problems in their way. May we find a better one for modern problems in sanity.

AN INVESTIGATOR.

Must Have Sentiment in Business Today

Editor Boston American:

Business men in Boston today feel that in business relations a certain amount of imagination is essential. I am saying this to your readers because a statement to the contrary was made in a recent speech of a prominent manufacturer. Much depends upon every business man possessing the ability to see the other man's point of view.

This marks the big business man from the small trader.

You have to put sentiment into business. The Edison man who knows the value of this in certain cases shows his ability and may soon look for his badge of success.

In business, we need the education of managers. Too many of the present band of managers who have risen from the bottom have acquired strong and stubborn habits during their fight to the top. Some of the worst offenders against the men under their charge are managers who have risen from the ranks.

Watch for Book Stolen in England

Editor Boston American:

Booklovers, look out for the copy of "Spencer's Faerie Queene," 1596 edition, stolen a short time ago from the library of the Furnese Priory, in England.

Thieves who knew the value of this edition, broke into the library there and escaped with the book.

It is supposed to be in Boston or New York. It is worth a large sum of money, so may not be sold at once. It is likely to be held in seclusion for some time. Look out for it.

First Fruits Justify Hearst Papers' Demand for Lobby Probe

FIRST fruits of the Senate's investigation of the lobby evil fully justify the demand persistently made by the Hearst newspapers that the Senate investigate the entire field of lobbying.

Startling disclosures by the Hearst newspapers of the insidious activities of certain lobbyists supported this demand.

And it was in the wake of these disclosures and in response to this demand that the Senate quickly adopted, by unanimous vote, the resolution of Senator Caraway under which a fearless sub-committee of the Committee on the Judiciary has launched a dragnet investigation of all lobbyists.

Called as the first witness, Frederick L. Koch, pottery expert of the United States Tariff Commission, revealed in the first five minutes of his testimony the following flagrant example of lobbying in its most vicious form:

Because Mr. Koch performed his sworn duty in giving to the Senate Finance Committee his views as an expert regarding the condition of the pottery industry, and because his information and his opinions did not corroborate the propaganda of the pottery industry, its chief lobbyist attempted to have Koch dismissed from the service of the commission.

NOT ONLY WAS THE COMMISSION URGED TO DISMISS KOCH, BUT EFFORTS WERE ACTUALLY MADE TO INDUCE THE PRESIDENT TO ORDER THE COMMISSION TO DISMISS HIM.

Charges were filed against Koch to the effect that he was favoring importers of foreign pottery. The utter falsity of these charges was quickly established upon investigation by the commission, reinforced by an independent inquiry by a member of the Senate Committee on Finance.

Here at the very outset of the Senate investigation of lobbyists, their insidious methods an.' their vicious purposes, is offered absolute proof of a conspiracy to influence the executive and deceive the legislative branch of the Federal Government in the framing of a tariff law.

And this proof comes from the first of a long list of witnesses yet to be heard.

How many other lobbyists have conspired to deprive the government of honest experts and to deceive the government by supplanting them with the stool pigeons of special interests, only a Senate investigation of the entire field of lobbying can disclose.

BUT THIS INITIAL REVELATION OF THE NATIONAL DANGER AND THE NATIONAL DISGRACE WHICH THE LOBBY EVIL CONSTITUTES SHOULD KEEP THE SENATORIAL INVESTIGATORS HOT ON THE TRAIL UNTIL ALL LOBBYISTS AND ALL LOBBIES ARE EXPOSED TO VIEW AND THE SPECIAL INTERESTS THAT HIRE AND MAINTAIN THEM ARE IDENTIFIED AND HELD UP TO PUBLIC SCORN.

Youngman's 'Bad' Lawyer

Name, Please?

(Copyright, 1929)

IN the ordinary course of events, Lieutenant-Governor William S. Youngman will be asked for the name of the attorney who held $4900 of a $5000 automobile-insurance payment until the Lieutenant-Governor made him let go.

Mr. Youngman told of this attorney at a hearing before the Special Commission on Compulsory Automobile Insurance.

"And when he had paid the widow her just share," the Lieutenant-Governor testified, "I said to him that if ever again I heard of any such conduct on his part I would report him to the Bar Association."

That, it appears, will not be necessary. Frederick W. Mansfield, president of the Boston Bar Association, will ask Mr. Youngman for the name of the greedy lawyer.

"If he is of the local association," Mr. Mansfield promises, "we'll look after him. If he is not a Boston man, the State Bar Association will act."

So, if the facts have been correctly stated, one more offender appears to be on his way out of an overcrowded profession.

The Tariff Brigade -:- -:- By T. E. Powers

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

PRESIDENT HOOVER and Premier MacDonald sat on a Virginia log while sinking the navies of the world.

We don't know who rolled off the log first. But their choice of a seat was perfect, for the world's first boat was a log.

The Premier's visit has left far-reaching results. We now know why Alice Longworth was late to MacDonald's White House reception.

She couldn't find her 16-button gloves.

It has been a long time since we griped those gadgets that look like a lady wearing her stockings on her arms.

But they came into fashion again at the Premier's reception. The 16-button glove is white and looks like a fireman's boot.

These gloves stretch from the fingers to the shoulderblades. You've got to send them to the carpet beaters to have them cleaned.

One complete pair means 32 buttons or about eight octaves.

When wearing 16-button gloves you must carry an extra one on your back like a spare tire.

The real aristocratic Washington dowagers never gave up their 32-hook gloves. They are beautiful but expensive.

And if a dowager can't be beautiful she wants to be expensive.

You can only wear them once, for they quickly develop baggy knees at the elbows.

That's all that Premier MacDonald's visit did to America. There is nothing more terrible than a 16-button glove with 14 safety pins.

Husbands of Washington society must allow their fingernails to grow wild in order to manipulate buttons on gloves which look like garden hose.

It's almost as tough a job as buttoning a Zeppelin up the back.

Premier MacDonald's visit has buttonized us.

Many ladies have never worn those multiple-buttoned gloves. We advise them to take buttoning lessons right now.

The way to work them is to start at the wrist and button until you meet your face.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

THE revival of biological inquiry and free biological teaching became remarkable in the 18th century. An increasing number of active minds directed themselves to observing, collecting and classifying. Art was becoming observant and more sophisticated representation. Observation at first was quite as much artistic as medical and surgical in its aim. There is a strong decorative passion apparent in many early science collections. They reminded their curators of curiosities.

H. G. Wells

The student, turning over the notebooks of Leonardo da Vinci, finds there the artist and scientific man inextricably mingled. From the studio and the private investigations of unsatisfied medical men, far more than from the bookish study, did the modern science of life arise.

Modern science owes more to art and natural interests and less to literature and philosophy than is commonly understood.

The geographical exploration of the 15th and 16th centuries was an enormous stimulant of biological work.

The invigorating influence of practical benefit was supplied by the acclimatization of new foodplants, the application of new medicinal substances, the production and importation of such commodities as cane sugar, tobacco, tea, coffee and a great variety of economically valuable novelties.

The development of the microscope in the 17th century meant a mighty enhancement of scientific observation. It revealed not only a whole new world of unsuspected life-forms, but a thousand structural secrets too fine for the scalpel.

In many of its branches the advance of biology has been determined by the progress of microscopy.

A third great mine of contributory knowledge was opened up by the study of fossils, of which Nicholas Steno (1638-1688) was the pioneer.

Biological science remained largely observational for three centuries, passing slowly from the development of botanical and zoological gardens and the enormous collection of shells, bones, fossils, flowers, fruits dried and preserved, specimens of all sorts, to dissection and the microscopic examination of tissues and living structure, and so on the subtle and ingenious analysis of all this ordered accumulation of facts and relationships.

Experiment has gone on from the 17th century, and since the middle of the 19th it has become the leading stand of biological work. Before that there were trials of this or that substance or device upon a living subject, vivisection to test deductions from observations, and a certain amount of extraordinary experimenting, but there was no wide progressive continuum of experimental work.

In the middle of the nineteenth century the Abbe Mendel made a series of breeding experiments, the full importance of which was not recognized at the time.

This work was revived about the beginning of the present century and became the starting point for a great activity of experimental breeding of poultry, rabbits, mice, guinea pigs, flies and plants of many sorts, types which reproduce with sufficient frequency to make possible the observation of a series of successive generations.

Work upon the living subject became more and more frequent and relatively more important. Increasing delicacy of manipulation, particularly under the microscope has, for example, rendered directive interference with the development of the eggs of many creatures a practicable thing and much work has and is being done upon detached fragments of still living tissue, carefully kept alive in nutritive solutions and upon the grafting of tissue from one organism upon another.

As the task of observing, classifying, comparing and recording the forms of life approaches completion experiment will become more and more the normal method of progress.

Antagonism to biological knowledge is by no means dead. There is a constant struggle to keep physiological or pathological information from people who might put it into beneficial practice, and to prevent the complete discussion of such questions, for example, as the possible control of the pressure of population upon the reserves of the community.

There is little or no reasoned justification for these suppressions.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

"WHILE I lie between the last dose of medicine and the last breath," said Mrs. Green, reflectively, "the sweetest thrill I shall have will be the memory of my Virtues of Omission."

"VIRTUES of omission?" repeated Mrs. Divot, wonderingly.

"That's what I said," replied Mrs. Green. "There are Virtues of Omission as well as Sins of Omission. It is easy enough to do a kind deed, when you stop to THINK about it, but the hardest thing in this life is to refrain from doing an unkind thing when you're not thinking.

"It is easy enough to get up after a good night's sleep or after you've made a big haul in the stock market, and pack up a bundle of old chiffon evening dresses to send to the heathen. But it takes real heavenly grace to get up some morning after a party, when you're feeling like a lost hope, and refrain from jumping on the milkman or the iceman or your husband or the cook or the office boy for any trifling offence.

"It's easy enough to give your maid an old coat that you'd never wear again and haven't got closed soon for, anyhow. But it takes angelic fortitude to restrain yourself from firing her or hurting her feelings on one of her 'off days,' when she breaks your pet bit of china and lets the cake fall, and burns the steak.

"It's easy enough to pick a few flowers and send them to your next door neighbor. But it takes genuine self-control and real Christian charity not to join the amid chorus at the bridge party, and tell what you KNOW about her family row, or her servant troubles or what she pays for her hats, or say what you THINK about her disposition or her hair.

"It's such a temptation to be caustic and witty at somebody else's expense and to be right there with the satirical comeback or the peppery retort—especially when you are born with a clever tongue. But it's the bitter things that we have left UNSAID and the mean little things we have left UNDONE that will be the brightest jewels in our heavenly crown."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed Mrs. Divot, "WHAT have you refrained from doing to make you feel that you're going to get a crown of virtue? Restrained yourself from pulling your husband's hair or from putting poison in his coffee, or from burning up his golf clubs?"

"You've guessed it," said Mrs. Green. "When John came in two hours late for dinner last night, without telephoning, I didn't say a WORD! I just smiled until it HURT! And what do you think? He HADN'T been playing golf at all! He'd just escaped being killed in a motor car wreck! And he'd been carrying the other victims to the hospital! It makes me shiver when I think of all the things I had planned to say to him!"

"You never can tell," said Mrs. Divot. "SOMETIMES, when a man says it's the 'traffic jam' that made him late, it acually turns out that it WAS the 'traffic jam!'"

Powerful Face, Strong Man

Mexico's Fighting Chief

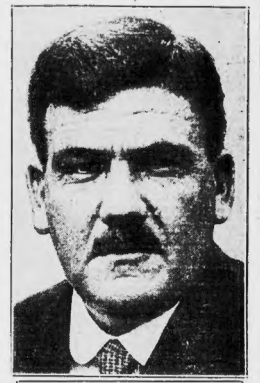
Copyright, 1929

THIS is the man who led the fighting, and DID a good deal of it, for Mexico in the recent revolution in which 4000 were killed, 11,000 wounded, and $50,000,000 damage done. If there are signs of trouble in Mexico and Calles happens to be away, word is sent him to return. Then the trouble dies out.

His soldiers believe that Calles can go anywhere, beat anybody. That belief makes them better soldiers.

Study of human physiognomy is interesting.

This is the face of a man that you would like to have with you on a dangerous errand.



ELIAS CALLES, MEXICO'S MAN OF IRON

Editor Fowle

His Newspaper Was His Life

THE great newspapers of the United States have been built in large part upon faithful and intelligent men like Arthur Fowle, buried this afternoon from his late home in Woburn.

He joined the staff of the Boston Globe in 1874, and by turn was correspondent, reporter, telegraph editor, city editor, day news editor, night news editor, sporting editor and managing editor. This last position, highest in the editorial department of the newspaper, he held from 1884 to 1926.

There were no telephones when Mr. Fowle entered newspaper work, no typewriters, no typesetting machines, no web presses. In fifty years, no journal has printed a story more marvellous than the evolution of the modern newspaper as HE witnessed it.

One paragraph, from the Globe's own story of the passing of a former chief, describes faithful newspaper employes in general:

"Practically all his newspaper work was done on the Globe. He grew up with it under Gen. Charles H. Taylor. It was his life. He thought of little else. He had seen it grow from small beginnings in the course of 50 years to become a great New England institution, and he was proud of the fact that he had helped 'bring it up.'"

Not so well-known to the general public, Mr. Fowle was held in high esteem by newspaper workers. No doctor and no lawyer has ever held his own profession in greater regard. "A. A. Fowle," as he signed himself, was a credit to journalism.

With the members of the "Globe family," we mourn his passing.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—One way of getting on in the theatrical world without an "angel," it appears, is to pick a quarrel with the erratic genius Flo Ziegfeld. It rarely elevates an actor or actress to fat fortune without subjecting them eventually to a neat panning, privately and publicly.

Ziegfeld usually selects material from obscure quarters—the two-a-day or cabaret. Most of them look like a trout to a fly, at the opportunity to appear under his banner. In the theatrical world, they are "made." After signing them to ironclad contracts he often goads them into frenzy.

He sends taunting telegrammes phones them at inconvenient hours, to whine some trivial complaint, resorts to law if he thinks they have violated contracts even slightly, and otherwise keeps them perpetually in hot water. He is never so pleased as when they fight back.

Few performers have carried the Ziegfeld brand in stellar roles without reaching the top of the heap. But the road is rocky and nearly all leave the fold with an ardent dislike for him, which he returns with equal scorn. He makes no effort to hide an acid contempt for players.

His method is as simple and devious as a wrestler, yet it has made him the absolute peer of the musical comedy field. His showman instinct for dropping a player at the right time is uncanny. It is a Rialto proverb that when Ziegy turns them adrift they are "washed up."

Ziegfeld is calm and glum during rehearsals and seldom speaks to performers. His verbal shots are aimed at the director. He prods him hard and the director in turn "simonlegrees" the company. On the night of dress rehearsal, Ziegfeld generally blows up and goes berserker.

He is terrible and white-faced in his fury. Nothing is right and everybody is a miserable hum. No one escapes his sibilant torrent of stinging sarcasm. He has them in a state of exhaustion right up to curtain time on an opening night. Yet they usually rebound and give their finest performance.

Some time ago I spoke of a Fifth Men's Shop on Canal st. where oversized clothes were sold. Several obese and puffing gentlemen wrote they had trotted the length of the street and could not find it and where do you get that stuff. In a prowl last evening I discovered the geographical inaccuracy. It is on the west side of Third ave. near 10th st.

A bird and fish store in New York sells on an average of 1000 goldfish a week. It is attributed to the lonely souls marooned in boarding and rooming houses who are not permitted to have dogs and cats for pets.

A New York dressmaker establishment specializes in outfitting prospective brides. Not one of its brides, the legend runs, has ever been divorced. All of which is a feather in the cap of a slick press agent who thought it up.

The quaint little brick building at Wall and Broadway known as The Chimney Corner is being supplanted by a 50-story bank building. The original site was sold for $500. The bank paid $15,000,000 for it.

Another libelous name for the street that whips the universe—Broadway—is "Hooey Hollow."

Capsule drama: A bearded lady in a side show the other day revealed she is married and the mother of three children. To provide money for their education she sailed to America to tour the country with "a galaxy of strange people." The husband divorced her and married again. The children have a new mother and believe the old dead. They will never know the truth. She spends all her spare time reading sentimental novels.

Just when a fellow begins to believe he has a touch of silver-haired sedateness in New York some taxi driver greets him with "Hop in, Doc!" And bloozy goes his dignity.

But, anyway, I feel sorrier for the fellow they tell about in Brock Pemberton's play who has the blitzs—you know, makes nervous faces at people all the time.
